Rural School Graduates Get Diplomas At Madison

YOUNG PEOPLE TOLD THEY ARE SALT OF EARTH

Nearly 1,500 Parents, Pupils and Friends at Commencement Program

BY MARGARET JOSLIN
Special to the Post-Crescent
Madison — They've come. They've gone. Four hundred graduates of Outagamie-co's rural schools, their teachers, their dads and their mothers armed with umbrellas and the children's coats, their sisters, brothers and friends, making in all nearly fifteen hundred visitors, made an all-day holiday and sight-seeing tour of commencement, Thursday.

Although A. J. Meating, superintendent of schools, warned them to wear old shoes, hundreds of pairs of new black patents, high heeled blondes and unwrinkled oxfords tramped over the wide lawns of Vilas park, surged over the quaint bridges that spans its lagoons, tramping on the football stadium, where diplomas were awarded, to the agricultural campus where their pictures were taken, then over the legendary sites of Wisconsin university, down the main street and to the state capitol where Governor Kohler gave them paternal welcome.

"You'll probably see more today than you have seen in all the rest of your lives," said Prof. R. A. Moore of the agricultural college of the university, and the children, who occupied a fraction of the immense stadium seemed to widen their eyes for a moment at the distant roar of football fans from the empty tiers of seats which were the background for the commencement speaker. Prof. Moore expressed the belief that "there are any boys and girls on God's footstool worthy of his goods its the farm children."

He said the best place to raise families is on the farm, and that the farm is Wisconsin's strength and hope. He expressed the hope that many of the children would eventually come to the university to take the full or the short course in agriculture, but said they should not be discouraged if they could go no further for it is not the institution that makes the man. "With the fundamental education you have," he said, "in this age of books, radio, and newspapers there is no reason for you not to attain those same heights which some of our greatest men and women with no different opportunities have attained."

On the slope of the "Ag" campus Prof. K. L. Hatch told the children the most interesting sights to see described the "ag" buildings where flowers and shrubs were studied where strange and wonderful experiments are performed on rats and guinea pigs, of the observatory whose cannon like telescope reveals the world of sun, stars, and moon, and of legendary Lake Mendota, made famous in poem by Longfellow, "the most beautiful sight," said Mr. Hatch, "is the beautiful sight you can see on the face of this globe."

Then, down State-st trooped the mass and up the inspiring steps of the state capitol. Above them glittered the dome, the pillars, the poetry of architecture. "Hope there's a bubble in there" gasped an impressed graduate.

Off went the hats of the boys as they entered the marble halls, as they swerved a frightened glance at a sculptured, half draped goddess of the fields waving over the middle balcony waiting for the appearance of Governor Kohler on the upper balcony. "Well," whispered the small boys surveying the lofty painted ceilings, and "pretty" hissed the little girls, "But you better not try walking around that high railing up there, Mary, or you'll fall off."

Governor Kohler surveyed the upturned faces above the stirred bosoms on every one which, from the baby sister, to the teacher, to the county agent himself there hung a numbered tag lettered, "Outagamie county rural school graduation, 1929." "We're surely glad to have you here in this city of university, capitol and scenery," beamed the governor, "and I hope many of you will grow up to be assemblymen." He was handed a tag and as he fastened it beneath the gala carnation of welcome in his button-hole he said: "I'll be a member of Outagamie-co the day."

DEMOCRATS STILL OWE OVER HALF MILLION

Washington —(AP)—The deficit of $1,500,000 left on the hands of the Democratic National committee at the close of the unsuccessful presidential campaign of Alfred E. Smith has been reduced to $557,715 in outstanding obligations.

A report by William Tyler Page, clerk of the house, by James W. Gerard, treasurer of the Democratic group, listed contributions since March 1, as amounting to $1,055,298.

J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican National committee, also filed a report which showed a balance of $112,761 as of June 1.

Among the larger contributors were $150,000 each from John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National committee, William E. Kenney, Herbert H. Lehman, all of New York; $100,000 from Mr. A. C. Brown, and $50,000 each from Bernard M. Baruch, William H. Todd, T. J. Mara, John F. Gilchrist, James J. Rorand and Representative Parker Corning, all of New York.

OFFERS REWARD FOR INFORMATION ON WIFE

Waterloo —(AP)—A reward of $50 is offered by Hubert Haberman to the person who can furnish information relative to the whereabouts of his wife.

Mr. Haberman, who has been searching for his wife since April 30, is sending out 1,500 circulars bearing her photograph and description, to police departments in Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa cities and villages.

Mrs. Haberman was reported to have spent the night of May 7 at a Stoughton hotel under the name of Mrs. B. Hanson. That was the last time she was seen.

DAWES MEETS BIG PROBLEMS AS U. S. ENVOY

Naval Armament Cut and War Debt Settlement Are 2 Biggest Issues

Washington —(AP)—Charles G. Dawes, new American ambassador to Great Britain, who is sailing today from New York for England to enter the diplomatic field for the first time, will be confronted with two of the most knotty international problems of recent years—naval armament reduction and the settlement of inter-allied war debts.

On both the naval armament and debt questions the new British prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, has indicated that he will press for action as major policies of the Labor party's administration of the English government.

So Ambassador Dawes, in the opinion of state department officials, will, upon taking over his first diplomatic post, represent the United States at a time of paramount significance in this nation's relations with Great Britain.

The large supply of his noted undesigning pipes which Mr. Dawes is taking to London probably will be called into frequent use as the new ambassador mediates on his new tasks, for besides the naval and debt questions, a number of other important Anglo-American matters will face him.

Among these will be the British attitude towards the new American tariff revision measure. England already has submitted to this government a number of documents from its trade organizations expressing dissatisfaction with many of the new tariff duties.

REPARATIONS ISSUE

Another subject upon which the new envoy probably will be called upon to represent the United States will be a familiar one—reparations. As the negotiations for the further discussion and ratification of the recent experts' agreement on the German war indemnities are carried on in Europe, Mr. Dawes may act as an observer or possibly a representative of this country. The former vice president has a full knowledge of this question, having had the leading part in the formulation of the first reparations agreement in 1924.

Mr. Dawes will find on the diplomatic program of his new embassy post several minor Anglo-American questions, among which is the discussions between the two governments over the rights of territorial possession in the frozen Antarctic. The expedition of Commander Richard E. Byrd to the South Pole has occasioned the interest of Great Britain because of the Antarctic explorations of one of its own citizens, the late Sir Ernest R. Shackleton, in 1907 and 1922.

MRS. JOSEPH STEFFENS FILES DIVORCE SUIT

Salinas, Calif. —(AP)—A rift in the marital happiness of the hospitable Carmel, Calif. home of Joseph Lincoln Steffens, author and lecturer, was revealed today in a suit for divorce filed by Mrs. Steffens, whose pen name is Ella Winter.

Mrs. Steffens charged extreme cruelty and said her husband objected to her attending dances or having other social relations. She also asserted that Steffens informed her he did not care for her.

The Steffens have lived in the artists' colony in semi-retirement, with their young son, Peter. They were married in Paris in 1924.

Steffens is 65 years old. Several months ago he wrote a magazine article on "How It Feels to be a Father at Sixty."

Mrs. Steffens, who is said to be in her thirties, replied the following month with an article entitled "How It Feels to Be Married to an Old Man."

CHARGES PARTIALITY BY KANSAS SUPREME COURT

Topeka, Kansas —(AP)—Alleging the justices of the Kansas Supreme court are guilty of "willful and malicious partiality and oppression in office," John P. Hanson, former Lincoln, Kas. attorney under suspension for contempt of court, has filed a motion in the Shawnee-co district court for an order directing the Shawnee-co attorney to prosecute the justices.

Hanson was suspended for an indefinite term by the Supreme court Nov. 11, 1916, as punishment for his alleged contempt in criticizing an opinion handed down by the court in a case in which he appeared as an attorney.

WILBUR OFF TO ATTEND MEET ON OIL ISSUE

Heads Representatives of Federal Government at Colorado Springs

Washington —(AP)—Representatives of the federal government, headed by Secretary Wilbur, left today for Colorado Springs to attend the governor's conference called by President Hoover to consider the possibility of eliminating waste in the oil industry through a compact among the principal oil producing states.

Secretary Wilbur conferred at some length with President Hoover before leaving and also had several conferences with commissioner Moore of the general land office.

While the general outlook for a successful conference was considered good, the secretary left behind a suit in the District of Columbia Supreme court filed by Ethel McLennan of McKittrick, California, who is seeking to force the interior department to grant her application to prospect for oil and gas on government land. Her application previously had been sent back along with similar requests from approximately 5,000 others.

MEETS PROTEST

The Petroleum Institute and the large oil companies who are associated with it have voted to assist the government in effecting a compact which would apply reasonably in all states, but smaller operators and independent producers have been actively opposed to the proposal. Many of them, through their organizations, have said it would put the small oil producer out of business and favored the larger oil companies.

The independent producers, who have been invited to attend the conference, already have opened headquarters in Colorado Springs to combat the compact. They contend that a tariff on oil would do much to solve the overproduction of petroleum in the country, claiming that it would shut out approximately 75,000,000 barrels a year.

Since inauguration of the President Hoover's conservation policy, the interior department has canceled permits and applications for permits in every state in the west. The governors and congressional representatives of these states have entered vigorous protests against the policy, holding that it was crippling the major business in their section.

HANDLE 18,000 CASES

Since March 12 the department has handled 18,000 cases, canceling permits and returning applications to approximately 8,000 of them. Holders of the other 10,000 have been ordered to show cause why they should not be canceled.

The Petroleum Institute, meanwhile, has outlined to the federal oil conservation policy of curtailment which the oil industry itself wished to put into effect along with the government program. The institute specifically asked the board to approve a voluntary agreement among the oil companies which would limit 1929 production to the 1928 level.

Attorney General Mitchell found, however, that the board had no power to approve or disapprove the plan and indicated that it would be in violation of anti-trust laws.

The suggestion was then made by Secretary Wilbur that the plan could be effected through a state compact which would limit production at the wells. The plan which he outlined was agreed to by the institute and President Hoover then called the conference of governors.

WOMAN SUICIDE'S NAME STILL UNKNOWN TO COPS

Chicago —(AP)—The identity of the young woman known as Barbara Cole who leaped 12 stories to her death from her gold coast apartment Wednesday night became today as much a mystery as the whereabouts of Edwin Page, broker, whose failure to return her love was given as the reason for her suicide.

An investigation by the coroner's office uncovered the information that Miss Cole was best known among a circle of gold coast acquaintances as "Donna Barron." Later she identified herself as "Barbara Cowles," and again as "Dorina Berry." The management of one apartment building recognized her picture in the papers as of a former tenant, "Eva Caldwell," and a hotel manager said she was known to him as "Barbara Barnes." Her luggage showed that identification marks had been obliterated and remarked "B.C."

Page, a member of the Chicago Stock exchange, married and the father of two children, did not appear at his office yesterday and the inquest in the young woman's death was postponed until such time as he appears.

Today's Tribune said that report that Miss Cole was the daughter of England's envoy to Norway was disproved in a dispatch from London last night.

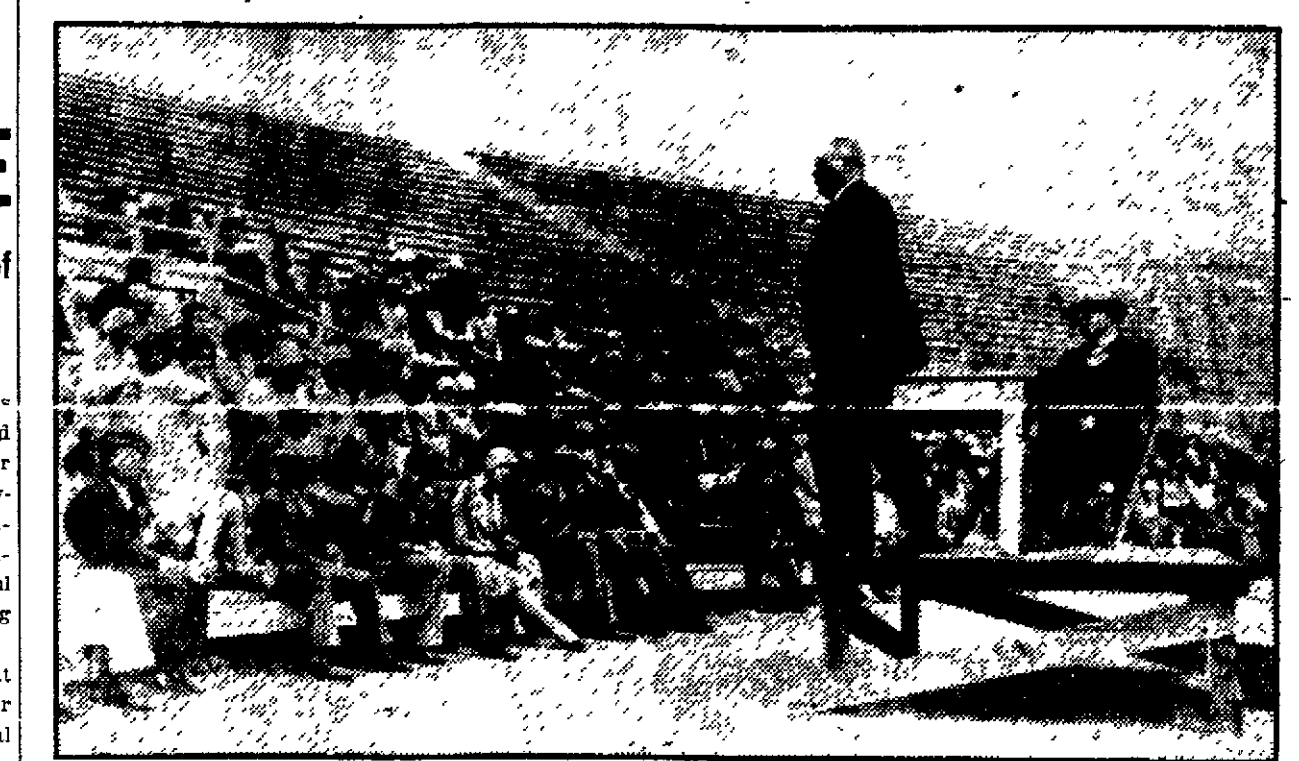

JAILED MAN BURNS HIS CLOTHES AT LA CROSSE

La Crosse —(AP)—An inmate of the central police station here apparently does not believe that clothes make the man.

Authorities Thursday said he had stripped himself of all his wearing apparel, piled it in a heap on the floor of a cell and had used it for fuel for a bonfire.

Nudity, even in a police station, is still regarded as unconventional in La Crosse so the police gave him other clothes. No use. He tore them to shreds.

HOLMES, BRANDEIS TOGETHER IN MOST HIGH COURT REPORTS

Two Supreme Justices Are Noted for Agreement on Most Issues

Washington —(AP)—One of the most notable "partnerships" in the history of the American judiciary, exemplified by the line — "Justices Holmes and Brandeis dissent" — has been more closely welded by their participation on the supreme court term just ended.

The two Massachusetts Justices, who throughout their tenure on the nation's highest bench have been noted for their agreement on constitutional questions, wound up their work for the recent session with disagreements from the majority view in two cases of outstanding importance, the O'Fallon railway case and the light for citizenship by Rosika Schuymer, Chicago pacifist.

Holmes has been a member of the court since 1902. He is the senior point of service and his 83 years make him the oldest man who has ever held a place on that bench. Brandeis is 73 and has been an associate justice since 1916, when he was appointed by President Wilson and confirmed over the opposition of a number of prominent men, including William Howard Taft, now chief justice.

Added to the notable frequency with which both justices have dissented vigorously from majority opinions of the court is their reputation for clarity and style in presenting their views, whether speaking for the majority or as individuals.

HOLMES KEEPS YOUTH

The venerable Holmes, whose astonishing youthfulness and virility of expression has aroused amazement of men fifty years his junior, particularly is noted for his epigrammatic writings, or as he terms them, "fragments of my fleece that I have left upon the hedges of life."

From the majority opinion denying naturalization to Mrs. Schuymer on the ground that she stated in her application she would not bear arms, if necessary, in defense of the country, Holmes and Brandeis dissented in a vigorous statement written by the former. With typical pungency, it said:

"If there is any principle of the constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other it is the principle of free thought—not free thought for those who agree with us but freedom for the thought that we hate."

Together, the two justices objected to the majority opinion in many instances where they thought the rights of labor, freedom of expression and sanctity of the home against search and seizure were being threatened. They dissented in 1921 when the court upheld Postmaster General Burleson's order withdrawing second-class mail privileges from the Milwaukee Leader.

Socialist organ published by Representative Victor Berger of Wisconsin and in another case in which the majority held that courts had the right to curb picketing.

The decision that evidence obtained by wire-tapping could be used also was disapproved by Holmes and Brandeis, as was the decision upholding the president's right to oust his appointees. In the O'Fallon case, of great importance to the transportation world, in which it was ruled that reproduction costs must be considered in placing a valuation on railroad property from rate-making, receipt and other purposes, Justice Brandeis' dissenting opinion was concurred in by Justice Holmes and Stone.

NEW YORK MINISTER ELECTED SYNOD HEAD

Holland, Mich. —(AP)—Dr. Daniel Poling, pastor of the Marble Collegiate church of New York city and internationally known leader of the Christian Endeavor societies, last night was elected president of the 123rd session of the general synod of the Reformed Church in America.

The annual convention of the synod opened here yesterday at Hope college, operated by the denomination. It was indicated the "fact finding mission" of the synod, which is to report Saturday, will recommend a merger with the Presbyterian church. Opposition is expected, however from the college group of churches of New York city.

Dr. Albertus Pieters of Western Theological seminary, was elected vice president of the synod.

SCHOOL YEAR AT LAWRENCE NEARS CLOSE

Presentation of Plays Opens Annual Commencement Activities

Activities of the seventy-third annual commencement of Lawrence college began Friday afternoon with the presentation of three one-act plays in the little theatre of the college chapel. The plays were "The Romance of the Willow Pattern," presented by Doris Gates, Helen Welfenbach, Anna Marie Perschbacher, and Grace O'Neil. "Hears," played by Eleanor Lea, Dorothy Shattuck, Louella Gribble, and Lois Kloeck; and "Will O' the Wisp" in which Evelyn Logan, Catherine Fintal, Louella Gribble and Beryl Mauer took part.

The second event in the exercises will be the annual Phi Beta Kappa address Friday night at the Congregational church by Dr. S. A. Bartlett of the Milwaukee museum. Dr. Bartlett will speak on his work in South Africa. Following this a feature of the union of Athena Literary society will be held.

The activities of Saturday will begin at 9 o'clock with the Class Day exercises on the campus in the morning, the alumni luncheon at noon, alumni banquet at 6 o'clock at night and the reception by Dr. and Mrs. Henry Merritt Wriston at 8 o'clock in the afternoon. Sunday the baccalaureate address will be given in the college chapel by the Reverend R. N. Spencer, rector of the Grace and Trinity Episcopal churches of Kansas City, Missouri.

The final event in the program will be the awarding of diplomas and degrees to about 100 Lawrence seniors. President Wriston will officiate at the ceremony which will take place Monday morning at 10 o'clock in the chapel. The speaker of the day will be Bishop F. J. McConnell of New York.

POOL HALL ROBBERS NABBED AT LA CROSSE

La Crosse —(AP)—Discovery of $17 stuffed behind the rear seat of an automobile Thursday led to a confession of Leland Hiles, 18, and Douglas Gilbertson, 19, that they robbed a pool hall in Onalaska.

The pool hall was robbed early Wednesday of approximately $60. Undersheriff W. J. Rice arrested Hiles and Gilbertson on suspicion and took them to the county jail in his automobile. Enroute one of the youths stuffed the money behind the seat and when the party arrived at the jail Rice searched the car and found the money. The confession followed.

SENATORS GET JOLT IN NAMING JUDGES

Hoover and Mitchell to Make Close Study of All Appointees

Washington —(AP)—The attitude of the Hoover administration toward the selection of judges and district attorneys is brewing a storm in Republican ranks in the senate.

Majority members of the senate for years have regarded their recommendations for appointees to the federal bench and to district attorneyships as final. It has been the practice of preceding administrations to accept the senatorial recommendations.

But President Hoover and Attorney General Mitchell have indicated that they intend to make a close study of all appointees to these offices and furthermore that they won't be bound by senatorial recommendations, although weight will be giving to them.

No new judicial appointments have yet been made by Mr. Hoover, aside from those judges who were nominated during the last session by Calvin Coolidge and were not acted upon. So the issue has not been drawn and the prospective Republican storm is still only in the brewing stage.

It is the position of senators that the responsibility is theirs for the men they recommend for appointment in their states. It is their contention that they are held as responsible by the electorate for the federal appointees as is the president.

Mr. Hoover, however, is understood to be taking the view that federal appointees are his responsibility and that he is determined to name the men to the bench whom he regards as best qualified.

Already, Attorney General Mitchell has rejected some recommendations for filling district attorneyships for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania, which were understood to have been sent to him by Senator-elect Vare.

LOCAL WOMAN IS SERIOUSLY HURT IN CAR ACCIDENT

Mrs. L. B. Powers in Milwaukee Hospital With Fractured Skull

Mrs. L. B. Powers, 34, 63 Bellaire-st., is in a serious condition at Emergency hospital, Milwaukee, with a fractured skull and internal injuries as the result of an automobile accident at the intersection of Jackson-st. and E. Juneau-ave., Milwaukee, Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Powers left Appleton Tuesday to attend a Baptist church convention in Milwaukee. Mr. Powers who is in Canada on business, was notified immediately of his wife's condition.

The machine in which Mrs. Powers was riding with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bettis of the Plaza hotel, Milwaukee, was traveling south on Jackson-st. when it collided with a car driven by Miss Clarice Gellman, 22, of 5555 Washington-blvd. Miss Gellman, who was riding alone was driving a car owned by Harold Knowlton, 119 Fifteenth-st., police reported. Her car and the Bettis machine swerved to avoid the crash but collided and stopped side by side after bounding over the curb at the southeast corner of the intersection.

Miss Gellman stepped from the car hailed a taxicab and disappeared before her identity was learned, police said, who found her at the Plantin hotel. Questioned later, she said she had attended a party in the afternoon. She was released without charges, pending the outcome of Mrs. Powers' injuries.

About 35 graduates of Appleton high school are expected to attend the five weeks summer school course at the Outagamie County Normal school, Kaukauna, which will open at 8 o'clock Monday. H. H. Heible, principal of the Appleton high school, will be at the Normal school Monday morning to assist Appleton students for registration.

Courses which probably will be offered include English, world and American history, physiology, physics, algebra and geometry. The maximum amount of credit which will be granted by Appleton high school for this term of work is one credit.

RAIL EMPLOYEES CLUB TO MEET ON JUNE 26

The final meeting of the Old Northern Wisconsin Railroad Employees' club which was to have been held here June 26, will be held at Moose hall, Fond du Lac, instead, according to W. W. Fradenburg, yardmaster of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad company and a member of the committee in charge of arrangements. Sessions are to be abandoned during the summer.

POSTPONE SESSION OF VACATION SCHOOL

Because of the Commencement exercises at Lawrence college next Monday, the regular session of the Methodist Daily Vacation school will be eliminated. Classes will start as usual at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, and at that time boys and girls who have not enrolled in the school may register for the remaining two weeks of the course.

The final enrollment in the school is 30. "The ship" program is well under way, and it is expected that a display of ships will be put on next Tuesday morning. The pupils have learned one hymn and parts of two others this week, and two missionary collections have been taken. The games of foreign countries are played during the play hour.

FACTORY MAY JOIN CHEESE FEDERATION

Patrons of Spring Brook to Consider Affiliation Soon

Before the close of a meeting of patrons of the Spring Brook Cheese Factory Thursday night in the Badger School, Spencer-rd., the patrons decided to call another meeting in the cheese factory to consider affiliation with the National Cheese Producers' Federation.

In the principal talk, Gus Brickbauer president of the association, outlined the history of the federation and criticized farmers for permitting others to market their products. He condemned the manipulation of cheese prices for speculative purposes in the face of constant yearly production and consumption.

Claiming that 80,000,000 pounds of cheese was imported into this country the past year, he scoffed at the idea of farmers getting tariff-protection or any other kind of farm relief except what comes through their own action. If the farmers of the country were organized from one to five millions strong, they could go before congress and get anything they wanted, he said.

He advised patrons to become members of farmers' cooperative marketing organizations and in any event to cling to their cheese factory organization as their greatest protection in the dairy business. If cheese is manufactured in the factory, it may be marketed through the federation, if milk is marketed it may be assembled at the factory, or if cream is sold it may be separated at the factory and be marketed by the organization, he said. With the factory crippled by this patron and that dropping off to grab a temporary bonus each patron must do his marketing single handed and will have little chance in the contest, he pointed out.

Charles Quince will leave Saturday for Antigo where he will spend a week at his home.

FINAL REPORT CARDS ARE READY AT SCHOOL

Final report cards are available at the Appleton high school office, and students are asked to call for them this week. Cards will be mailed out only when a self-addressed stamped envelope is left at the office. The cards, which are a cumulative record of the year's work, now contain final six weeks and final semester grades.

HOLY NAME GROUP HAS SPECIAL TRAIN

Members Bound for Rally Will Leave City at 7 O'clock Sunday Morning

A special train will carry approximately 600 members of the Holy Name society and their families from this city to Stevens Point Sunday morning, where the 1929 Diocesan rally of the Holy Name society will be held. The train will leave between 7 and 7:15 Sunday morning.

Mass will be held at 5:30 Sunday morning at St. Joseph church, and breakfast will be served at St. Joseph hall. Following breakfast those planning to attend the rally will march from St. Joseph hall to the station, led by the 120th Field Artillery band, which will be one of the fourteen bands in the parade at Stevens Point.

Registration will begin at Hotel Whiting at 8 o'clock and the pontifical high mass to be celebrated by the Right Rev. Paul F. Rhode, will begin at 10 o'clock on the grounds of St. Joseph academy, located at the end of Union-st.

The sermon at the mass will be preached by the Rev. Francis E. Murphy, pastor of St. John Cathedral, Milwaukee. The business session will begin at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and the parade will start at 2 o'clock. The afternoon address and Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament will take place at the fair grounds, with M. S. Szymczak, clerk of the Superior Court of Cook county, Chicago, as the speaker.

CONFEDERATE VETS PASS BEFORE CHIEF IN ANNUAL REVIEW

Most of Them Travel in Automobiles but Some Insist on Marching

Charlotte, N. C. (AP)—Under clear skies and with pleasantly cool temperatures the remnants of the Confederate armies passed in review today before their commander-in-chief and a throng of admirers running high into the thousands.

The veterans closed their business session yesterday by electing General Sneed as commander-in-chief and making provision in a resolution for succession should a commander pass away during the year. The resolution provided that the adjutant general, appointed by the commander, should succeed automatically. General Sneed immediately named Harry Rene Lee of Tennessee, adjutant general.

Their business transacted and the dead of the past year mourned in a special service, the veterans hurried back to the days of their youth last night with their grand ball. The old time fiddle replaced the saxophone and the dances of sixty and seventy years ago, marked the opening of the affair.

But by midnight the ball had been turned over to the younger generations, the Sons of Confederate Veterans and the boys and girls of today. The veterans had in almost all instances retired to their rooms to rest weary bodies for the parade today.

Two veterans who came to Charlotte happy in reunion with the boys who followed Lee and Jackson were returned to their homes today to their last bivouac. General Cortez A. Kitchen of St. Louis and Major John Hancock of Dallas, Texas, died yesterday. Pneumonia took the general and the major died of heart trouble.

Winding up their convention, the Sons of Confederate Veterans elected John Ashley Jones of Atlanta, Ga., as commander-in-chief, to succeed Edmund R. Wiley. He was elected at Little Rock, Ark. The veterans also raised $1,392 to pay off indebtedness on the Manassas battle field.

The Confederate Southern Memorial association in its concluding business session raised $1,113 to be applied on the Stone Mountain memorial.

DEATHS

WILLIAM BUETOW

William Buetow, 46, route 2, Kaukauna, died at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon at his home following an illness of several months. He was born in Germany and came to this community about five years ago.

Besides the widow, he is survived by one daughter, Gertrude, Kaukauna; two sons, John and Ernest, both of Kaukauna.

The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at the home, with the Rev. Paul Ehrlert in charge.

MAURICE GLEED

Word has been received here of the death of Maurice Gleed, 79, at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Brunka, Oshkosh. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 Sunday afternoon at the home.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gleed, Outagamie co. pioneer, and the second wife child was born in the home to which he moved to Oshkosh where he was employed by the Chicago and North Western Railroad company for 22 years.

In 1875 he married Emma Mason and three children were born to them. He is survived by his widow; two daughters, Mrs. William Athes, Waukegan, and Mrs. William Brunka of Oshkosh; five grandchildren; seven great grandchildren; one brother and five sisters.

MACKAY HEAD OF ADVERTISING CLUB

Officers for Ensuing Year Are Elected at Thursday Meeting

C. E. Mackay was reelected president of Appleton Advertising club at a regular meeting Thursday at Conway hotel. Ray Eichelberger was elected vice president. Ralph Gee, secretary, and Julius Koppin treasurer. The board of directors for the coming year will include J. E. Murphy, Harvey Schlitz, G. S. Galpin, H. B. Hallett and K. H. Corbett. John Mullen, a representative of the rural affairs committee of the chamber of commerce explained the plans of the committee for securing cooperation between the rural districts and the city. Suggestions were made by the members of the club for promoting such cooperation. It was decided to hold regular meetings in the summer. Previous to this year the organization has dispensed with summer meetings. Preliminary plans for the fall opening were discussed. The annual stag picnic of the club will be held June 13 at Stroeb's island.

GREENSPOON GUILTY OF ZONE LAW OFFENSE

J. Greenspoon was found guilty, but a jury in the justice branch of municipal court Thursday night, of violating the city zoning ordinance. The jury deliberated more than three hours before reaching a verdict. The case opened before Judge Theodore Berg Thursday morning and it went to the jury about 5 o'clock. Greenspoon was arrested on complaint of John N. Weiland, city building inspector, who charges Greenspoon remodeled his residence at 526 W. Wisconsin-ave so that it could be used as a store. He claimed the changes were made without a permit.

CHURCH TO CONDUCT DRIVE FOR SEMINARY

Racine (AP)—A six weeks' campaign, to be launched immediately in all congregations of the denomination, for the purpose of raising $50,000 for Grand View seminary, Des Moines, Ia., today was authorized by the 32nd annual convention of the Danish Evangelical Lutheran church of America, assembled here.

The money to be raised by the drive, together with $21,000 insurance, is to be used to reconstruct dormitories and class rooms of the school recently destroyed by fire as well as to add two new wings to the institution.

AWARD CONTRACTS FOR FRANKLIN HEAT PLANT

Contracts for a new heating plant for Franklin school have been awarded by the school board to Wenzel Brothers plumbing company on their bid of $4,312, and the electrical work is to be done by the Langsted Electric company at an approximate cost of $18, Edward Wettengel was the architect.

BURGLAR OPENS TWO SAFES; TAKES NAUGHT

Ironwood, Mich. (AP)—The world's "dumbest" burglar was at work here last night. He opened the safes in the offices of Thomas J. Landers and E. W. Massie, attorneys, and he left each place without taking a thing.

WOMEN'S ORCHESTRA TO PLAY AT LOCAL BEACH

SEE OPPOSITION TO TRIAL FOR BELDEN

Six Senators Vote Against $1,500 Appropriation for Purpose

Madison (AP)—The opposition which those who seek to impeach Circuit Judge E. B. Belden, Racine, will encounter in the senate if the assembly gives to the upper house the duty of trying Judge Belden, was made plain today.

Six senators voted against an appropriation of $1,500 to enable the assembly's judiciary committee to employ stenographic and other help for its hearing of charges against Belden, which is to begin June 11. Senator Dargatz, conservative, who opposed the appropriation, announced he was against that bill or any other measure dealing with consideration of the Belden matter. Five senators who voted with Dargatz were Markham, Hall, Boldt, Caldwell and Teasdale. Both houses passed the appropriation, there being no dissenting vote in the assembly.

ALLEGED BIGAMIST IS ARRESTED IN OMAHA

Omaha (AP)—Paul H. Ashman's honeymoon, was interrupted in four months, was arrested yesterday and today he is in jail charged with having two wives. He acquired wife No. 2, Miss Madeline Berg, 21, of Omaha, on June 1. Wife No. 1, a police declared, is Miss Grace Tice, of Denver, Colo., whom Ashman married on March 19.

Ashman, who is 29 years old, told police his home is at Uhrichville, O., and that he was graduated from the Mechanical Engineering college of Ohio State university in 1926. He said that sometimes he used the name Robert Ashley. Police said that Ashman admitted having spent some time in the state hospital at Mansfield, Ohio.

The story Ashman told police is that he went to Denver several months ago and worked as a radio salesman. There he met Miss Tice and after a short courtship they were married. He then left Denver on May 15, telling his wife he was going to Chicago to see his father.

With his father, he took a trip to the Pacific coast and while on the train met Miss Berg. Before the train reached Seattle he had become engaged to the girl. The last of May he came east and married wife No. 2.

Miss Berg's relatives were not "sold" on Ashman and asked police to investigate. With the aid of government agents, his first marriage was revealed.

MILWAUKEE AIR MAIL STARTED 3 YEARS AGO

Milwaukee (AP)—Three years ago today air mail service to Milwaukee was inaugurated.

Pilot Dan Kiser brought the first load of mail—500 pounds—in an open ship and landed on a makeshift field. He took off the same morning for LaCrosse and Twin Cities but was forced down at Portage.

William Brock, who with Edward Schlee attained fame by flying nearly all the way around the world, completed the leg of the air mail service by taking the southbound mail the same day to Chicago. Three years ago today someone in the group that watched the first air mail plane arrive suggested that within 10 years pilots would be carrying passengers in comfortable cabin planes. His suggestion was scoffed at but now most of the air lines have cabin planes.

BLACK CREEK MAN IS SANATORIUM TRUSTEE

F. D. Zocholl, Black Creek, former supervisor, was appointed to the board of trustees of the Riverview sanatorium to fill the unexpired term of H. J. Versteeg, Little Chute. Mr. Versteeg tendered his resignation this week as a result of ill health. He had been a member of the board since it was organized in 1914. BOARDS MUST ASK FOR ROAD CHANGES

C. C. Secretary Told Changing of Highway 10 Is Possible

The Wisconsin state highway commission probably will relocate federal highway 10 from Appleton to Manitowish, if the county boards of Outagamie and Outagamie-counties will formally petition for the change. Kenneth Corbett, secretary of the Outagamie chamber of commerce was informed by the highway commission office at Green Bay Friday. Mr. Corbett visited the office to obtain information on the change proposed by the local chamber of commerce.

The suggestion of the Green Bay office was that the highway be routed over highway 55 from the point where the two now intersect as far as the county line road and then into Appleton on E. John-st. The chamber now will approach the county boards on the subject.

POSTPONE ACTION ON NEW SANATORIUM ROAD

Plans for building a new road around the north end of the addition at Riverview sanatorium were deferred pending further investigation at a joint meeting of the building and grounds and sanatorium committees Thursday afternoon at the courthouse. Present plans for the road, as prepared by the McMahen Engineering company of Menasha, call for a cut in the hillside. The committee also decided to have the contractors lay underground cables from the top of the hill to the new addition. Bills for part payment of the construction work, totaling $7,200 were allowed.

At a special meeting of the building and grounds committee held before the joint session, the insurance on the Outagamie Rural Normal school at Kaukauna was increased from $100,000 to $125,000. The additional insurance was divided among five agents who have not yet had any of the county business. Insurance on the equipment at the school totals $10,000. The committee also allowed bills totaling $420.

PAPER MILL MEN ELECT EASTERNER

James G. Ramsey Heads Superintendents—Fred C. Boyce Is Honored

Wausau (AP)—James G. Ramsey, superintendent of the Jessup and Moore Paper company, Philadelphia and Wilmington, Del., today was elected president of the American Pulp and Paper Superintendents association, which is holding its tenth annual convention here.

Carl Magee, Richmond, Va., was elected first vice president; R. H. Kelley, Wausau, Wis., second vice president; William Brydges, Big Island, Va., third vice president; Charles N. Mooney, Lee, Mass., fourth vice president; J. E. Blosser, Chester, Pa., fifth vice president. R. L. Eminger, Miamisburg, O. was elected secretary-treasurer and Fred C. Boyce, Wausau, was elected a trustee for a three year term.

Adoption into the Winnebago Indian tribe by a delegation from the reservation at Shawano last night was another of the honors bestowed on Mr. Boyce.

Mr. Boyce, who is superintendent of the Wausau Mills Co. at Brokaw, founded the organization 10 years ago. In addition to the emblem awarded him by the convention yesterday, the executive committee of the association gave him the watch, offered by L. D. Post, publisher of "The Paper Mill" for the most outstanding achievement in the association in the last decade.

By way of reciprocity, Mr. Boyce this morning served a brook trout breakfast to more than a hundred of his friends who are attending the convention.

WOMAN PICKPOCKET VICTIMIZES FARMER

Kenosha (AP)—Police here today are looking for $720 in bills, taken from Andrew Olson, 55-year-old Kenosha co. farmer by a woman while he was on his way home last night.

According to his story, the woman approached him and invited him to go to her home with her, upon his refusal to do so, she left in an automobile. He then noticed that the money was missing from his pocket.

Police traced a car, believed to be the one used by the woman, as far as Waukegan, Ill., where Elmer Green, 30, was arrested as the driver. Chicago police later picked up Mrs. Tessie Johnson, who is being held pending identification by Ol son.

CLASS OF 49 TO SEEK CITIZENSHIP PAPERS

Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner will hear 49 applicants for citizenship from Outagamie co. residents at a special naturalization hearing to be conducted at the courthouse at 9 o'clock Saturday morning. Following the examinations and admission to citizenship a brief program will be given for the members of the class by members of the Oney Johnson Post of the American Legion. A short address will be given by C. C. Baker, a past post commander.

FAIR AND WARMER WEATHER IS SEEN

Fair weather with a rise in the mercury is the weatherman's offering for this vicinity for the next 24 hours. Frost is probable in the lands Friday night.

His predictions for the past 24 hours failed to materialize, although the mercury dropped several degrees Thursday night. No precipitation was reported in this section of the state.

At 6 o'clock Friday morning the mercury registered 51 degrees above zero and at noon the thermometer stood at 67 degrees above zero. Winds are shifting in the north and northeast.

COUNTY FARMERS AT GUERNSEY PICNIC

A large number of Outagamie co. Guernsey breeders attended the State Guernsey breeders' picnic at Cornum farms, near Fond du Lac, on Thursday. Features of the program were addresses by Carl Musser, secretary of the American Guernsey club; Dr. Wayne Munn, president of the state association, and Walter Duffy, state commissioner of agriculture. Another attraction of the picnic was a hugging contest in which teams from the various counties took part.

RACINE MAN CHOSEN HEAD OF TRAVELERS

La Crosse (AP)—Carl Skow, Racine, today was elected president of the past grand counselors of the United Commercial Travelers, whose annual convention is in session here. L. J. Exelberg, Milwaukee, was named secretary-treasurer.

The travelers will elect other officers tomorrow and will close the convention with their installation on Sunday.

Charles McClain, 76, for 50 years a traveling salesman, today offered to contribute $400 toward a fund seeking to establish a home for aged members of the organization, provided such a home is sanctioned by the convention.

CLOUDBURST STRIKES PART OF TWO STATES

Bismarck, N. D. (AP)—A cloudburst in western North Dakota and eastern Montana last night brought almost five inches of rain in several places. Weather forecasters today at the federal weather bureau here said, "Reich had 1 1/2 inches. Several washouts were reported from the railroads on the Northern Pacific Railway."

BUT THAT'S A VERY EFFEMINATE JOB FOR YOU, MR. T. GOBBLER!

Monroe (AP)—A baby turkey a day is what Fred Naggar, a farmer living near here, expects in about a month because there is a very unusual gobbler in his barnyard.

The bird is a handy family man and has assumed the responsibility of sitting on eggs laid by his mate until they are hatched. She lays one a day and pushes it under him.

MEXICANS PREPARE TO SETTLE DISPUTE

legislation making the provisions effective and with the accession of Prof. Diaz as Mexican president shortly afterwards the church regained its old influence, this continuing until the overthrow of Diaz in 1910 by Francisco I. Madero.

The Mexican constitution of 1917, given birth during the administration of Venustiano Carranza, contained the old provisions made even more rigorous. During the reconstruction administration of General Alvaro Obregon (1920-24), however, they were allowed to pass unnoticed, and it was not until 1925, in the administration of President Plutarco Elias Calles, that enforcement was attempted.

There might have been a settlement even then save for one provision, that requiring the clergy to register with the Mexican government. This the ecclesiastics protested. Finding the government implacable the episcopate finally ordered the priests to abandon their churches, their order taking effect Aug. 28, 1929.

Since then, nearly three years, the only religious services in Mexico have been secret. Those church buildings and cathedrals which have remained open bore placards stating they are the property of the Mexican government. Priests and their superiors charged with violations of the religious laws have been prosecuted relentlessly, many seeking exile, others being deported.

LINDY'S YACHT "GOING EAST," HE DECLARES

Portland, Me. (AP)—The motor cruiser Mouette with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride, the former Anne Morrow, was "going east" along the Maine coast today.

It was thought the boat might be heading for the island of North Haven and the summer home of Mrs. Lindbergh's father, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow.

The cruiser made York harbor last night and Colonel Lindbergh took on supplies sufficient to run him to North Haven, about 100 miles up the coast.

"Yes" and "no" were his replies to queries from H. M. Philbrick, at whose wharf he docked his boat to restock.

The Mouette was tied up an hour and then cast off and finally anchored off Cape Porpoise, some 15 miles east of York harbor.

"Going east" was the colonel's reply to an invitation from Republican National Committeeman Joseph W. Simpson that he spend the night at York harbor.

MUNICIPAL SWIMMING POOL OPENS FRIDAY

The Municipal swimming pool was opened for girls at 8 o'clock Friday morning and a large number took their first dip. It was reported, however, that a member of the Lawrence college swimming team will be the caretaker and life guard this summer.

The pool will be opened on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays for girls and on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays for boys and men. Periods will be from 8 to 12 o'clock in the morning, 1 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 to 8 o'clock in the evening, according to Mr. Ryan. The evening hour is for adult swimmers.

13 TO BE CONFIRMED AT ST. MATHEW CHURCH

A class of 13 young people will be confirmed at special services at St. Mathew Lutheran church at 10:10 Sunday morning. The Rev. Philip Froelke, pastor, will be in charge. Jensen, Koshong, and Ruby Fear, Appleton; Frank C. Strobel, Appleton, and Linda Weststrom, Chilton; James Kools, Appleton, and Marian Peerenboom, Florence; Clement Hogan, Clintonville, and Dora Weyenberg, Little Chute.

Slays "Hugger"

Tennessee faces an unusual murder trial in the case of Miss Eva Cofer, above, of Georgetown, accused of having beaten a man to death with a wagon spoke because he tried to hug her. She is now at liberty under $10,000 bond. The victim was Lee Atchley, a Georgetown merchant, and Miss Cofer claims he tried to embrace her when she went to his store to make a purchase. She denies, however, that her blows caused his death.

HONOR WORKERS AT DINNER PARTY

A dinner party in honor of Mrs. Anna Gosse and Miss Elisabeth Fleming of the Y. M. C. A. cafeteria was given by the employed staff of the association in the cafeteria Thursday evening. Approximately 20 members of the association staff and their friends were present.

Miss Fleming soon will be married to Herbert Hilderbrandt of Kohler. Mrs. Gosse will leave the latter part of this month for Milwaukee where she expects to make her home. A shower was given in honor of Miss Fleming.

HERE IS SUMMARY OF DEBT AGREEMENT

occupation in the Rhineland by 13 per cent, was taken into account in the report. The rest of the cost of the occupation will be liquidated in the first 37 months.

Mixed claims are to be liquidated within 52 years.

The experts dwell especially on their attitude toward the commercialization of the reparations problem. They emphasize that they have tried to substitute processes of peace-time methods for war-time psychology.

The first part of the report is largely introductory. It deals with the terms under which the reparations problem was referred to the committee and it also gives a recital of the meetings that have been held.

The next chapter is devoted entirely to the commercialization program. It emphasizes the efforts to convert what has been a political debt into a business obligation through the floating of part of the bonds.

The later chapters say that the different governments interested will take concerted action concerning floating of the reparations bonds in various markets. But any creditor nation is permitted to deal in its own country as large an amount of the bonds as is desired for refunding of internal debts.

PASTOR WILL PREACH AT CHICAGO CHURCH

The Rev. F. C. Reuter will go to Chicago, June 11, to preach at a special service of dedication at Grace Lutheran church, Marshfield and 61st-sts. The church will be formally dedicated Sunday, and Rev. Reuter will speak Tuesday night at an organization night meeting. The Rev. Walter Wietzke is pastor of the church.

MAENNERCHOR MEETS TO REHEARSE SONGS

The Appleton Maennerchor met for rehearsal at the Maennerchor rooms Thursday evening. Songs to be sung at the annual Saengerfest at Sheboygan in July and at the concert the latter part of this month at Calumet Harbor were rehearsed.

BEG PARDON

Mrs. Jesse Felton was installed as president instead of vice president of the Ladies Auxiliary of Eagle Wednesday night, as stated in the Post-Crescent Thursday.

The funeral of Fred Roepcke, Cicero, will be held at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the home, with services at 2 o'clock at the Evangelical Lutheran church at Chilton. A program of inquiry in the "causes of the failure of the Federal Farm Loan act to fulfill its mission and the causes for the crippled condition of some of the joint land banks and the failure of others."

Milwaukee (AP)—Shot by his brother, Joseph, 32, after an argument late Wednesday, Michael Granath, 26, died at the county hospital late last night.

NATIVE POLICE HEAD AT MANILA FAVORED BY FILIPINO PEOPLE

Chief Leaves on Six Month Vacation but Probably Won't Return

Manila, P. I. (AP)—The Filipino leaders are casting their eyes toward one of the most important government posts to come within the possible reach of a Filipino since the Filipinization days of F. B. Harrison's regime as governor general. The post is that of chief of police of Manila. Only Americans have held the position in the past. The post apparently became vacant several weeks ago when the chief, Col. John W. Green, left for the United States. Officially he went on a six-month leave, but it is understood that he does not intend to return.

With Colonel Green's departure, Lieut. Col. Gerogrio Alcida, a Filipino, became acting chief. During his few weeks as head of the department, Alcida has caused the greatest shake-up in the police force in years. He summarily dismissed three Filipino detectives, recommended the demotion of two American police captains, recommended the reprimand of an American sergeant, and investigated three Filipino detectives, with the possibility that two of the latter will be dismissed. He has reorganized the five vice squads which prevailed under Colonel Green and has organized five new ones. He has made two important raids on Chinese opium dens and two important raids on Filipino gambling places. His campaign against gamblers is said to have resulted in the withdrawal of the gambling rings to the suburbs.

TRY TO ADD POWER
The effort of the Filipino leaders to obtain the post of chief of police for a Filipino is in keeping with their policy of extending Filipino control to as many branches of the government as possible. However, it is declared in well-informed Filipino circles, the leaders will not be insistent about the matter. They are said to feel that the Americans and the Europeans resident in Manila are too strongly opposed to a Filipino. Some of them are inclined to believe that it is perhaps best to have an American at the head of the department, and thus let him bear the responsibility for whatever crime there might be in the city.

Acting Governor General Gilmore has given no indication of whom he intends to appoint as chief. He says that the post is not vacant yet and that he will not take up the matter of a new appointment until it is.

MISTRIAL DECLARED IN STUDENT SLAYING

Virginian Deputy Sheriff and Comrades Again Face Court in September

Abingdon, Va.—(AP)—J. W. Crowe, Washington-co deputy sheriff, was at liberty under $5,000 bond today after a mistrial yesterday afternoon ended the commonwealth's initial prosecution of a murder charge against him in connection with the fatal shooting of J. W. Kendrick, 16-year-old Emory and Henry college student near here the night of May 6.

Crowe is under joint indictment with W. D. Worley, another deputy sheriff, and James McReynolds, Abingdon policeman, all cases were continued to the September term of court with the original bond for each officer standing.

Kendrick was taken mortally wounded to a hospital by Paul Phelps and Sterling Dutton, who told of officers firing on the car in which the three were riding and which was driven by Phelps.

The three officers admitted firing on the car driven by Phelps but throughout the trial the defense sought to prove that Kendrick was not an occupant of the machine at which shots were fired. The officers said they were seeking Phelps, believing him to be driving a car while intoxicated, and Dutton, believing him to be intoxicated. They contended that they at no time saw Kendrick in the car although, they said, they believed he would have been seen if he had been an occupant.

After a little more than two hours deliberation the jury yesterday af-

Play Ball, Big-Boys, Health Society Urges

Madison — Health authorities today called upon the grown-up boys of Wisconsin to go out and play baseball with their children. The Wisconsin State Medical Society declares that playing baseball is not only a splendid exercise but one which relaxes the mind and gives the players something else to think about. Baseball on the back lot is not for the boys alone but for the fathers, declared the bulletin of the State Medical Society issued today. The bulletin declares that if more people mowed lawns and chopped wood and played baseball, we would have healthier men in the nation.

"The growing boy, and the grown boy too, needs exercise in order to keep his health up to par," declares the bulletin. "Exercise can be taken in many ways — mowing a lawn or chopping wood is exercise, but to be of the greatest benefit exercise must have something in it in addition to mere bodily motion. There must be some joy in the doing of it. Baseball answers all the requirements for good exercise; it's played out in the open and, although strenuous at times there are intervals of rest between the periods of more violent exertion; and last but by no means least in importance, it brings a whole-hearted joy to the boy in his play. Right here let us say that a man is nothing but a boy grown up, and whatever is said to the boys — can be applied to their big brothers and their fathers as well.

"Even if we can't all be good ball players, we can all get some fun and some mighty good exercise out of the game. However, in this as in all sports we must be careful not to overdo. Don't start in and immediately try to pitch a full nine-inning game the first time you get out on the diamond. Take things easy. The muscles that you use playing ball are not used too much ordinarily, and if you overdo the first time out you may produce a muscle injury that will last for a long time.

"Not only is baseball a splendid physical exercise — it keeps the mind as well. After a hard day in school wrestling with the three R's — reading, 'rithmetic and 'rithmetic — a couple of hours on the baseball diamond will relax your mind and give you something else to think about.

"One thing that should not be lost sight of is that not every boy is physically fit to play baseball, and before he tries it he should be examined by his family physician to make sure that there's nothing wrong with his heart or lungs and that he is strong enough to play.

"And now a word for the grown-up boys: Most of you are too fond of getting your exercise sitting in the grand stand and watching others. That's better than staying indoors, to be sure, but a moderate amount of active participation is still better.

COUNTRY CLUB BARS JUNIOR PROMENADE IF NEGROES ATTEND

Evansville, Ill. —(AP)—The junior prom, chief social event of the Evansville township high school's commencement season, was threatened today because of a difference of opinion as to whether 15 negro students should be permitted to attend.

There are 700 members of the junior and senior classes eligible to attend the formal event. Thomas Lord, president of the Evansville Country Club at whose clubhouse the prom was planned to be held June 14, informed school authorities that the clubhouse would not be available if the Negroes were to be present.

Officers of the two classes, school officials and Mrs. Julian Goodhue, president of the Parent-Teachers' association, have urged the Negro students not to meet upon attending. Mrs. Goodhue told them that a special affair exclusively for them would be arranged.

Juanita Beck, one of the Negro students, told Mrs. Goodhue that the

MACDONALD IN THE SADDLE

Ramsay MacDonald is again in the saddle in Great Britain. For the second time this leader of labor, who rose from the most humble position to the highest office attainable to a British subject, is in charge of the government. It will be hard for the tory die-hards and even many moderate Conservatives to accept the Labor administration without prejudice. They are largely hostile to Labor per se, and therefore will not be disposed to accept what Labor proposes on its merits. This may or may not constitute a majority of British opinion. The future will determine that. But there is enough of it to make the position of the MacDonald government uncertain, even precarious. His tenure of office is purely a matter of guesswork, all depending upon the parliamentary support it receives.

There is, however, one field of political action in which the new government can determine its own course; and that is foreign affairs. Already MacDonald has given notice that he will seek to have held at the earliest practicable moment another international conference on disarmament. With this proposal he will find the United States ready to cooperate. It is not at all unlikely that acceptance by the new British ministry of the American viewpoint covering naval reductions and freedom of the seas would have the approval of parliament and the people. There are also important questions regarding inter-allied debts and resumption of political and trade relations with Russia.

In all these spheres the new government can go far without interference by the house of commons. Whatever may be the reaction of Europe and England to the MacDonald government, it is sympathetically received in the United States. While few Americans occupy themselves to any extent with the domestic affairs of Great Britain, there is general knowledge that they are in a chaotic and threatening state, and there are plenty of people here who at this time have more confidence in the capacity of labor's program to meet this situation than of the government which has just passed out.

NATURALIZING FOR WAR

The case of Rosika Schwimmer, the Hungarian pacifist, always a curious and interesting one, is made more sad by the decision of the United States supreme court on her naturalization suit. The lady first came into prominence when she tried to stop the World war, and enlisted Henry Ford and his famous peace ship in the enterprise. The American public approved her at the time, though considering her rather quixotic. Our public itself was pacifist then. The public changed, but Rosika did not. She kept right on preaching peace. She has been at it ever since. She naturally made herself unpopular in America when we were fighting, and afterward. Just how she stands now with the nation it is hard to tell. But her standing with the courts is quite clear.

She cannot become an American citizen, even now, because when questioned by the federal judge in Illinois, she declared that she "would not take up arms personally" for the United States or any other country. It may be that Rosika Schwimmer is an undesirable person, unworthy of American citizenship. But a good many Americans cannot help wondering whether the United States doesn't discredit itself by barring her on this particular ground. We have our own pacifists. We had them during the war, and while scoring them, we made allowances for them in the draft. Our native "conscientious objectors" were not compelled to fight. Men, too, naturally wonder why our naturalizing authorities should apply this particular requirement so drastically to a woman. Are we going to make the women fight the next war?

FOOD PRODUCTION

Just at present over-production of food crops is a more serious problem than the feeding of the world's millions. Yet there are individuals who fret and worry lest the world become overpopulated and the human race die of starvation. Such anxious ones should be referred to the recent statement of Dr. O. E. Baker of the United States department of agriculture on this subject. In 1940, according to this authority, there will still be available in the United States 500,000,000 acres of potentially tillable land; an area greater than the total of cultivated land at present. The tractor and intensified methods of cultivation have increased production 50 per cent more rapidly than our population since the World war. It will not be necessary to expand the net farm area of the nation for at least another decade.

"Nearly all the requisite increase in our crop acreage," he says, "could be obtained by cultivating the crop land that is now idle on farms. In addition to this idle crop land our farms contain more than 100,000,000 acres of ploughable pasture, as well as areas that could be cultivated if cleared and drained." If distribution methods improve as they should, there is not much danger of the country going hungry for a good long time. What is true of the United States is true of as many other countries, even such old countries as England and France.

RADIO VS. NEWSPAPERS

Radio has been much praised as an advertising medium, and far be it from any newspaper to question its value for that purpose. But according to Roger Babson, the hard-headed business statistician, there is another advertising medium so much more effective that radio can hardly be called a competitor.

The Babson Statistical organization, says Mr. Babson, advertising its own service, recently spent $3,000 for a half hour publicity program on one of the national radio networks. Then two days later it inserted an ad costing the same sum in the newspapers of five cities.

From the radio ad the organization got 16 inquiries and two telegraphed orders. From the newspaper ad, apparently covering a far smaller area, it got 4,000 inquiries. Mr. Babson figures that the radio replies cost $166.66 apiece, while the replies from the newspaper ad cost 75 cents apiece.

FINDING OUT ABOUT STEEL

The first steel skyscraper ever built is now being torn down in Chicago. Put up in 1887, it is now out of date, and is being removed so that a bigger structure can take its place.

Experts from the American Institute of Steel Construction are watching the demolition with great interest. For years there has been considerable discussion about the way a building's steel framework will endure the changes wrought by passing years. Some experts have thought one thing, some another; no one has been quite certain.

Now, however, they are going to get a chance to find out. Steel from this pioneer skyscraper will be put through all kinds of tests, so that the experts can tell definitely just what, if anything, has happened to it. The new knowledge thus gained will prove of great value in future steel construction work.

GOOD NEWS FOR ANGLERS

American anglers will be gratified to know that the Departments of the Interior and Commerce have made an agreement whereby a fish culturist from the latter department will see to it that the streams and lakes of our national parks are kept full of fish.

In most parks the fishing is good enough already. But the presence of the government expert means that it will stay that way. Streams and lakes will not be allowed to become depleted. In some cases new varieties of fish can be introduced; in others, the stocks that are already present will be increased.

All in all, it looks pretty nice for the angler. The great sport of fishing is going to be preserved—as far as our national parks go, anyway.

The great dam at Gatun in the Panama Canal is 7,500 feet high, 2,100 feet wide at the base, 328 feet thick at the water surface and 100 feet wide at the top.

The net balance of import and export trade in Great Britain last year was approximately $150,000,000.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Faderewski's private car, a de luxe home on wheels, is being overhauled and re-equipmented for his use again next fall.

The car has as nearly as possible the appointments of home, for the Polish pianist literally lives in it for six months.

It has its own lighting and heating system, is connected by telephone with each city where he stops for a concert, and has accommodations for an entourage of eight—his wife, secretary, tour manager, valet-masseur, transportation supervisor, chef and two porters.

Quite different is this from the informal way in which Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink travels. The tale is told of how on more than one occasion she has remarked:

"Well, if there is no lower, I will take an upper."

And, although she likes the comforts of a drawing room, many times she has sat up in a day coach all night, en route to a town that did not enjoy the privilege of sleeping car service.

MUSICIANS ON THE ROAD

The traveling habits of musical artists are, of course, known to their managers, but perhaps to few others.

Schumann-Heink hurries to a railroad station a full hour before train time, nervously urging the taxi driver to go faster if she has only a half hour to spare. Jascha Heifetz, on the other hand, is most likely to come strolling nonchalantly into the station just as the trainman yells "All aboard."

Paderewski travels in a private car as a matter of convenience. It saves him the trouble of getting up early to catch trains.

The routine of the car is always the same. Paderewski wakes late, having dined heavily after the concert on the previous night—rinses for tea, then goes through an hour of muscular exercise. He practices three or four hours a day and on evenings when he is not playing he likes nothing better than to go to a movie.

THE MOVIE LURE

Movies are the one thing these three utterly different musicians—Paderewski, Schumann-Heink and Heifetz—have in common. Heifetz has been known to drive his car 50 miles to see the filmed antics of his friend, Charlie Chaplin. Heifetz also spends many hours on tour prowling around bookshops hunting for additions to his collection of rare books. Paderewski's literary inclinations are concentrated mainly on philosophy and biography. There must, of course, be a mystery story fan among musicians and she is Schumann-Heink.

Paderewski's private car has not always proved a convenience, however.

One of his weaknesses is tramps, and on one occasion when the car was sidetracked in California for several days he gave orders to the chef that any tramp asking for food was to be fed. Overnight the news spread and soon the great unwashed were coming in ever increasing numbers until the chef complained he had no time to do his own work.

Then Paderewski suggested giving each 50 cents in lieu of a meal. This brought even greater numbers until eventually the chef, waving a large bread knife, chased them all away.

Today's Anniversary

CHATEAU THIERRY

In the spring of 1918, Allied hopes were at ebb tide. Ludendorff was outmarching Foch. Two hundred thousand Germans had burst through French and British lines on the Chemin des Dames, one of the strongest positions on the Western Front. Then Cantigny fell to the Americans, fighting their first independent attack of the war. But the Germans were, meanwhile, drawing dangerously close to Paris.

Just 11 years ago today, that was the World War setting. Fate and military tactics—those American troops to bear the brunt of the Allied effort to throw the Germans back in their march on the French capital and 11 years ago today they did it.

The scene was Chateau Thierry and the fighting was as fierce as any during the entire war. And while it was being fought American troops got their first real taste of warfare.

The drive that ended successfully on June 7, 1918, was followed up two weeks later by a general Allied offensive which drove the Germans back many miles farther.

BUT ROBINSON CRUSOE DIDN'T

If immunity is more or less fixed, writes a Colorado Springs lady, how does it happen that invariably people who contract tuberculosis do so after becoming "run down" from flu, pneumonia or similar illness?

In the same mail comes a clipping from I do not know what newspaper, in which a health officer was asked if Robinson Crusoe could have caught a cold. He said: "Yes. He could have had pneumonia. Germs long dormant in his system might have developed under certain conditions."

Far be it from me to say that Crusoe didn't, but I do desire to remark that he didn't. Perhaps that oversight was natural—they hadn't discovered germs at the time Robinson Crusoe was created.

Along with the Robinson Crusoe comment is this editorial assertion: "Lowered vitality, due to poor health, old age and various other causes will mean lowered resistance and greater liability to take cold." This reminds me of a death certificate made out by a young intern: Direct cause of death, heart failure; contributing cause, patient ceased breathing.

Altho some of our medical pool-bahs strain every nerve to explain what "resistance" is, there is no reason to assume that resistance is anything else than immunity. Immunity, so far as we understand it at present, is a fairly fixed state, once has acquired a given degree of immunity; I mean that we have no scientific evidence to indicate that immunity against say diphtheria, tuberculosis, pneumonia, smallpox or what are you afraid you'll have, is appreciably influenced by any momentary factor, such as fatigue, expository experiments on animals, carried out for the purpose of demonstrating that such a factor can or does reduce immunity, lower resistance or render the animal more susceptible or more readily inoculable, have been very disappointing to the school of medical thought that would retain this quaint theory.

The doctor with the Byrd polar expedition was running around naked the other day, with the atmosphere at 50 below zero. His remains have not yet been received by sorrowing relatives. But then, the old fossils will say, he naturally has good "resistance." That's why I lose my temper when I try to discuss this subject with the old timers.

Not invariably, but in too many instances, pulmonary tuberculosis is eventually diagnosed after an illness that has been mistaken for pneumonia, flu, bronchitis or pleurisy. I have made that mistake myself in as many cases as the average doctor does. But then, tuberculosis is so very common that it is only reasonable to assume it will develop in some cases not long after genuine pneumonia, bronchitis or pleurisy. Nothing about these other illnesses to confer upon the patient immunity against tuberculosis. On the other hand we have no scientific ground for the theory that any such illness robs the individual of any immunity he may have had against tuberculosis, or against diphtheria, or against smallpox, as well as we know, is always a specific state; it is never a general state. No fear that any scientific authority will challenge this.

Once you have managed to acquire any degree of immunity against any known disease, you've got it for keeps and nothing, except possibly the lapse of time, can rob you of it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Infection of Tuberculosis

I have been staying for two years in the home of a girl who has tuberculosis. I never slept near her and only visited her on sat and talked with her now and then. How can I you tell when you are getting it? (G. P.)

Answer—You can't tell. That is a difficult problem even for your physician made by your physician at regular intervals for two years after the exposure.

Neuritis Obsession
Could you tell me if neuritis of the nerves is to be cured. The party that has it has suffered about a year. (Mrs. C. G.)

Answer—Neuritis is an imposing medical term meaning inflammation of a nerve or sometimes more than one nerve. But that doesn't divulge what ails the patient. As a rule, I think, laymen who imagine they have "neuritis" have no such trouble.

Crude Surgery
I used glacial acetic acid to remove warts on my neck, but it left unsightly red spots. (C. B.)

Answer—The familiar corn remedy of 30 grains of salicylic acid dissolved in half an ounce of flexible collodion—may be painted on warts on hands or feet, and will dispose of them about as effectively as it does corns or calluses. But I advise against attempts at self treatment for warts about the neck or head. Warts or other blemishes in that situation should be treated only by a physician.

Diabetes
My brother is a diabetic. Are prunes, apples and peanuts harmful to him? (J. A. K.)

Answer—Not necessarily, but only his physician can advise what quantity of such foods the patient can safely take. Apple would be the best item of the three to begin on; then prunes; finally peanuts.

The Mystery Woman
Is there anything that will help a person break the cigarette habit? Will power sufficient seems to be lacking. (Miss F. W. B.)

XIV

Sisley Huddleston believes that Louis XIV was the "grand monarch" and surpassed any other ruler in the splendor of his court because he had an inferiority complex. Huddleston is so sure of it that he has used it as a thesis for a fat volume under the title, "Louis XIV in Love and War."

The argument runs like this. As a child Louis was below the average in intelligence, with none of the instincts of a ruler. In his games he was fond of playing vial, proving to Sisley Huddleston at least, that he had an inferior complex. His father, died when he was a little boy and, while nominally he became king, the real ruler of France was Cardinal Mazarin, the lover of Louis' mother.

Mazarin and the queen regent took full advantage of their position and kept the boy in complete submission. He was subjected to many humiliations and his mental inferiority was constantly emphasized.

Finally the time came when Mazarin was removed from the scene by death and Louis became king on fact as well as in name. Because of the inferiority complex that he had developed during his unhappy childhood he considered it necessary to assert himself more than any other monarch in the world. His splendid court, his wars against other nations, his decision to keep all power in his own hands instead of delegating it to ministers—all this was merely to hide from the world his inner sense of inferiority, the author tells us. If he had had a happy childhood and had not been repressed during the years of his development, Louis would probably have grown up into a normal monarch and he would not have found it necessary to sacrifice hundreds of thousands of lives to his ambition.

The new biography of Louis is written purely for the purpose of proving the inferiority complex theory. The idea is driven home in almost every chapter in the volume and at times becomes wearisome.

The author faced the fact that all of Louis' mistresses were low-born and toward the end of his life, when the queen who had been chosen for him by Mazarin died, he secretly married a commoner. Again the handy inferiority complex came to the rescue. Louis felt uneasy, says the author, in the presence of clever and high-born women. Women, we are told, are more intuitive than men and they saw through him. These low-born mistresses knew how to feed his vanity and how to make him feel at ease. They could, in other words, wind him around their fingers.

It is a little hard to see why clever and high-born women should be regarded as less intuitive or as less able to adapt themselves to the monarch's vanities. But the facts are there and they must be made to fit the theory.

It can readily be admitted that Louis was of mediocre intelligence both as boy and man but that does not absolutely prove that he became the most splendid monarch of the century because of a sense of inferiority. The theory may be correct but it is just a little too pat to carry absolute conviction. In spite of the author's elaborate argument covering several hundred pages, a doubt continues to linger when you close the book.

But aside from the inferiority complex theory, "Louis XIV in Love and War" makes an interesting volume. It is not brilliant, like a Strachey book, but it gives a painstaking picture of Louis' long reign. How Louis sowed the seeds of the French Revolution a hundred years after his death makes the book of interest as history as it is of interest as biography.

FLASHES FROM HOLLYWOOD

BY ROBBIN COON'S

Hollywood—Working in talkies is worse than in six-a-day vaudeville. The statement is attributed to dapper Eddie Quillan, and yet he calls it play.

The reason is that with Eddie, and the rest of his family, it has been an axiom that "work shall be play." Another motto of theirs is that "all happens for the best."

When Eddie's father, a wealthy man, a manufacturer and a producer of plays over in Scotland, lost his money, maybe they said that too was "for the best." I don't know.

But when five of the nine Quillan children were in American vaudeville working hard, with father as manager and mother as guide, they adhered to their watchword that "work was play." They never "went to work," says Eddie. It was always "We're playing tonight."

"FOR THE BEST"

There were Buster and John and Joe and Marie and Eddie—five Quillans. Eddie is in picture now, a star though just barely into his twenties. John and Marie are in pictures too. Buster and Joe are in high school. Mack Bennett broke up "Buster Quillan & company," their vaudeville act, when it hit Los Angeles a few years ago. Mack snapped up Eddie for two reel comedies. John wrote and titled in pictures.

For two years or more Eddie played in two-reelers—he thought he'd never get out of them into something better. But there was a little disagreement, and for a while Eddie was—well, not steadily employed. Then Cecil B. DeMille, about to make "The Godless Girl" tested him for the lead. He did not get it—but he was so good they rewrote the script and created a character especially for him to play.

"So that, too," says Eddie, "happened for the best."

Eddie Quillan is a likeable kid, and funny. Collegiate-looking, collegiate-dressing, wearing a breezy grey hat at a jaunty angle on the side of his head. He is short, and his walk is rather cocky. But his modesty is a studio byword.

POOR MARILYN!

Poor little Marilyn Morgan! Marilyn goes to two schools, Hollywood high and Pathe's junior stock company school conducted by Frank Reicher, who is training a selected group composed mostly of unknowns for possible future stardom in talkies.

That's no misfortune, of course, but this is: she's only 16, and scarcely looks that. With most of her fellow-pupils she was given a small part in "Joe College." Now the picture is completed, they've decided they may have to "cut her out"—because she doesn't look old enough even to be a freshman!

Petrels are so named because their habit of walking on water recalls the biblical story of Peter.

SOUTHERN VETS
LEAN, HARD, WIRY

Fat Men Have Been Winnowed Out, Observers Report

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
Charlotte, N. C.—From the ranks of the lingering thousands of confederate veterans, the years have winnowed out all the fat men. Even the drummer boys are now 84 or more. It is lean, hard, wiry men who have fought off the barrage of the years and who are now frolicking through their thirty-ninth annual reunion here.

Dietitians may make much of this or it may be deduced that one last longer riding a mule than he does riding an up to date electric horse—but anyway the lean men are here and the fat men are gone. Some deep dish among future historians may figure it out.

Base horns grow bigger here than anywhere else in the world. Fifteen bands, snappy, high stepping, outfits, unbeatable both in volume and artistry, have at last worked this town up to a happy frenzy of delight as they blast back the years and usher in romance. This "Bonnie Blue Flag," the confederate hymn, the way they play it down here, would make even a dyspeptic lean shark rebel yell. It is an infection which none can escape. If Calvin Coolidge could get a few days off from his writing job and spend it here while the bands are playing he would become as garrulous as Texas Guhman.

The United States Marine band has made the veterans just about as happy as anything that has happened. A few years ago when the confederates held their convention in Atlanta, Sousa refused to play
"Dixie," because he didn't figure it

BAND HEALS SCAR

About the last of the old scars had healed, but this Sousa incident was a lingering irritation. There was some anxious conjecture as to whether the Marines would play the beloved old tune. When, at the big meeting at the armory Wednesday night, the band turned loose with Dixie, the crowd reached just about the highest peak of ecstasy of the reunion. The last of the old scores was settled. Then, the crowd cheered just as loud for the Star Spangled Banner.

Sain Newton, from Cleburn parish, Louisiana, has a buckskin suit and a muzzie loading gun, about seven feet long. He is by no means the only Daniel Boone in the lot. One of the boys from Panola county, Texas, packs a bowie knife and big wallop of that old time Missouri twist chewing tobacco and knows sixty three verses of the "Chisholm trail."
Pete Kitley, one of the "razorback" crowd from Arkansas has a trained badger which carries the meat home from the butcher shop and his grandfather—Mr. Kitley's—knew John Crockett and Adama Pote, the Indian fighter, and Mr. Kitley insists that he is the only living man who can "crease" a wild horse with a minnie ball—shooting it in the neck at the one tiny spot which will cause it to be paralyzed and captured, but not killed.

The badger story, told out on the camp ground, reminded Adam Pruett, or Missouri Ridge of his pet badgerhog, Katie, who slept in the kitchen and once licked a timber wolf. The tales are endless. These are Siegfrieds of America's Niebelung and with them will pass the lore of a wilderness as deep and alluring as that of James Fenimore Cooper.

VETS ARE IN PAST

There is, in this gathering of veterans a complete isolation from all the disturbing and perplexing realities of today. There are in and of the past. It is noticeable that small boys besedge the Daniel Boones, rather than the more impressive generals and grand this-and-thats who head the re-unions. Around an army tent there is a crowd of eager lads painstakingly following the instructions of a grizzled and knotty old veteran who is showing them how to make a squirrel trap while he tells them about Chickamauga.
"So general Hood asks if any man will take this dispatch through the union lines. I stepped forward and saluted, and said 'I will take it through sir.' It was raining cats and dogs and you couldn't see your hand before your face. I saddled up old Dan—"

50 LOCAL PEOPLE TO ATTEND RIFON JUBILEE

About 50 Appleton people are expected to go to Ripon Saturday to attend the diamond jubilee celebration being held Friday and Saturday to commemorate the founding of the Republican party. There is no definite plan being made by local Republicans to send an Appleton delegation to the celebration, although prominent members of the party here estimate that Appleton would be well represented.

TWO CURVES WILL BE ELIMINATED ON 41

Two newly paved stretches of road on Highway 41, which will eliminate two dangerous curves, are expected to be opened to traffic within the next week. The curves to be eliminated are at Gillingham's Corners and near the Valley Garden dance hall, both in Winnebago co.
The work was done by the Winnebago-co highway commission. Paving also has been started on Highway 26, the Waupun rd between Oshkosh and the Winnebago-co line.

Have Blue Wedding Trip

Charleston, W. Va.—A gay honeymoon automobile tour, financed by holidays and murder, has led to cells in Kanawha jail for Violet Willmott, 14, and her husband, Walter Willmott, 21.

Instead of speeding gaily along highways, Willmott and his bride are spending their honeymoon in prison, involved in the murder of a filling station attendant.

A few weeks ago, they were married in Elizabeth, N. J. Then they met Millard Morrison, 24. Morrison had plans and an automobile. He offered to take them on a honeymoon tour. The newlyweds accepted.

Everything went well until they were a few miles east of Charlestown. Their automobile was badly out of repair, and it was decided a new one must be obtained. Accordingly, they stopped the car and the two men walked ahead to flag the driver of the first new automobile to pass.

The first man signaled didn't stop.
The next driver happened to be Frank Bowen, filling station proprietor, on his way to town to bank money and to purchase supplies.

Willmott says he climbed in the front seat with Bowen, saying that they were on their way to a filling station to buy gasoline for their empty tank, pointing to the stalled machine as proof of the statement.
Morrison got in the rear seat.

Seven minutes later, the men returned to their machine. In the short time, Bowen had been shot at close range, behind the left ear.
"I shot him for you, Vi," Mrs. Willmott declared. Morrison told her.

The three transferred their belongings, including three pistols, into Bowen's car and proceeded.
Frightened, they started to speed.

Noticing the speeding auto, a policeman overtook them and found Bowen's body, covered with a bloody overcoat, on the front seat of the car. The "tourists" were arrested and placed in the county jail.

Morrison and Willmott were charged jointly by a special county grand jury with the murder. The young wife is being held as a material witness. Morrison refuses to talk, but the other two described the crime.

Bewildered and frightened, the 14-year-old bride remains loyal to her husband.

"Sorry I married him? No, indeed I'm glad of it. My father tried to prevent our marriage and the last thing I told him was to 'go to hell,'" she declared.

and his 14-year-old bride, Violet Willmott, photographed in jail. In inset is Millard Morrison.

Monson and Betty Rettler, were honored at the closing session of the school for perfect attendance records. Neither girl was absent during the entire three years spent in the junior high school.

Ninth graders who had perfect attendance during the past year included Edward Jansen, Misses Lucille Boehlein, Helen Monson, Betty Rettler, Camille Vorbrick, and Harriet Drexler. In the eighth grade
Miss Lillian Oertel was the only student with a perfect record, and in the seventh grade Miss Dorothy

Her 8 Years Of Suffering Ended

"Sargon Has Made Me Like a Different Person," Says Mrs. Meile

"Sargon did me more good than all the other medicines I have taken put together.

"For over eight years I suffered with stomach trouble. My food seemed to sour about forty-five minutes after each meal and I had to

MRS. JOSEPHINE VAN NELLE quit eating sweets altogether. I almost dreaded to eat anything. I would have such a bloated feeling and burning pains from the hot acids that would keep coming up in my throat for hours afterwards. I was dreadfully constipated and I tried everything, but nothing would keep me regulated and I would have to change medicines every few days.
I would have dizzy spells and terrible headaches.

"A friend of mine, who had gotten wonderful results from Sargon, wanted me to try it and I'm certainly glad now that I did. Sargon soothed my stomach so that everything agrees with me and my food gives me the proper nourishment.
After three bottles of this strengthening medicine, every pain and ache in my body is gone and I feel like a different person.

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills overcame my constipation and I don't have any more headaches or dizzy spells.
It seems mighty fine to be in such splendid health."
The above grateful statement was made recently by Mrs. Josephine Van NELLE, esteemed resident of 1013 Llewellyn St., Milwaukee.
Sargon may be obtained in Apple-

PARTIES

Members of a bridge club met for dinner and cards Thursday night at Conway hotel. Mrs. Clifford Brandt of Kaukauna was a guest of the group, which included Mrs. August F. Brandt, Mrs. Willard Peerenboom, Mrs. Harry Herzog, Mrs. Emil Court, Mrs. I. E. Maxwell, Mrs. John Burke and Mrs. Tom Hill. The tables were decorated with individual bouquets of flowers were used at centerpiece. Prizes at cards were won by Mrs. Burke, Mrs. Clifford Brandt and Mrs. Herzog.

Trustees of the Presbyterian church entertained for members of the choir and persons who have helped with church music during the past year, at a dinner Wednesday evening. About 25 persons attended. Mrs. Harold Heller, director of the choir, was presented with a gift as recognition of her efforts during the last year.

About 25 active members of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority attended an informal banquet given at Hotel North on Thursday night in honor of the senior members. The banquet is an annual affair.

Nine members of the Modern language department at Lawrence college attended a farewell banquet for Miss Charlotte Lorenz and John Sullivan at Hotel Northern Thursday noon. Miss Lorenz has been granted a leave of absence to study in Spain and Mr. Sullivan will continue his work at Madison. Arrangements for the dinner were made by Dr. Louis C. Baker, head of the department.

WEDDINGS

Miss Esther Sterling, daughter of R. E. Sterling, 404 E. Circle-st., and Clarence Schwahn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Schwahn, 1321 W. Prospect-st., were married May 31 at Dubuque, Ia. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Retza were the attendants. After a short wedding trip, the couple will reside at the home of the bride's father.

at 7.30 Monday evening in the church basement. A lunch will be served after the meeting.

Seniors of St. Matthew church will entertain the Juniors and members of the newly confirmed class Tuesday night at the church. The reception for the confirmants will follow a regular Bible class meeting at 7.30 in the church basement.

Religious Education was the subject of a paper by Mrs. C. Freiburg at the meeting of the Women's union of St. John Evangelical church Thursday afternoon at the church. A report of the district convention held recently at Fond du Lac was given by Mrs. Harold Krueger. Mrs. Charles Damscheuser, Mrs. Peter Bast, Mrs. Albert Krueger, and Mrs. Harold Krueger were appointed as a committee to visit the sick for the next six months. Rev. and Mrs. E. John Fleer, Milwaukee, were guests at the meeting. Hostesses were Mrs. W. R. Wetzel, Mrs. A. Winters and Mrs. A. Bauer. Twenty members were present.

A program of readings was given after the business session at the meeting of the Ladies Aid society of the German Methodist church Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Otto Becker, 1 Spring-st. "The Missing Ones" was read by Miss Ada Johnson. "Taking Our Life Careers Christianly" by Mrs. Mary Greinert, and "Mrs. Myrtle's Precious" by Miss Gertrude Koehler. Ten members were present. The next meeting will be the first Thursday in July at the home of Mrs. Mary Greinert, N. North Division-st.

The regular monthly business meeting of the congregation of St. Matthew Lutheran church will be held at 7.30 p.m. Sunday.

TOY SYMPHONY IS ON PROGRAM

A toy symphony was a feature of the program presented by pupils of Miss B. Farrell Thursday night at her home at 1009 W. Spencer-st. All other numbers of the program were piano solos or duets. The rapid aria from the "Barber of Seville," was sung by Franklin LeFevre with a freshness of feeling and a beauty of tone that won much applause from the audience.

The program concluded with a brilliant and technical Tchaikowsky Concerto by Everett Roudeshush, accompanied by the orchestra, directed by John Ross Frampton and Miss Ruth Ortmann at the second piano. Mrs. Roudeshush's performance was sure and commanding and he played the music with as much feeling as he presented the more scholarly passages with precision and accuracy.

Accompanists were Nettie Steninger, Fullinwider and Miss Lucille Nelson.

Third degree rank of Knights was conferred at the meeting of Knights of Pythias Thursday night at Castle hall. Regular business was discussed. A committee of three to take charge of the memorial service June 25 will be appointed later. Plans were made for a picnic to be given Aug. 11. Gilbert Trentlage was in charge of refreshments. The next meeting will be in the fall.

CLUB MEETINGS

A handkerchief shower was given for Mrs. Fern Conley by the Past Matrons club Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Emma Delbridge, Kaukauna. Mrs. Conley will leave Appleton shortly for Rhineland. Twenty-five members were present. Bridge was played and prizes were won by Mrs. L. J. Marshall, Mrs. Joseph Krahn and Mrs. Henry Brauer.

The Shuffle club was entertained Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Alvera Johnson, E. Harrison-st. Mrs. Leo Keating and Mrs. Howard Eberhardt won prizes at bridge. The club will meet next Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. H. Nielsen, 1004 E. North-st.

Flower Mission Day was observed at the meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. M. Gurnee, N. Sampson-st. A business meeting was held and refreshments served by the hostess. The group then returned to the cemetery where the members decorated the graves of Mrs. L. A. Pardoe, for many years local and county president, and Mrs. N. A. Olin. Memorial services were held at the graves.

Mrs. George Barrett entertained the Duna club Thursday night at her home on Summer-st. Two tables of bridge were in play and prizes were won by Mrs. Erwin Rohloff and Miss Katherine Keller.

Mrs. Edward Dericks was hostess to the Good Pal club Thursday evening at her home at Kaukauna. Two tables of dice were in play and prizes were won by Mrs. John Schuh, Mrs. John Maier, and Miss Marie Horn. The club will meet in two weeks at the home of Mrs. James Brown, 308 W. Atlantic-st.

Twenty members of the Adelphi club of the Y. M. C. A. and their lady friends attended a werner and marshmallow roast at Sunset point on the lower Fox river Wednesday evening. Games and stunts furnished amusement. A similar event will be staged again within the next few weeks.

The Harmony Girls presented a program of music Thursday evening at Sunview sanitarium, Oshkosh. The program included "Saxophone Waltz," "I Can't Do Without You," "You Were Meant For Me," "Broadway Melody," and "Carolina Moon," mandolin ensembles played by the club; "Some Sweet Day," a violin solo, by Miss Wilma Van Zealand; "Irish Washwoman," a mandolin solo, by Miss Van Zealand; "Recess for Remembrance," mandolin duet, by Miss Sarah Leitz and Miss Laura Kolberg; "Sweethearts on Parade," by the club; "After the Ball," by Miss Kolberg on the mandolin, accompanied on the piano by Miss Van Zealand; "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," by the club; "Caresing You," a violin solo by Miss Van Zealand; "Drifting and Dreaming," by the club.

Program Of Music Given By Students

OPENING the Lawrence college commencement program for 1929, an impressive and brilliant program of instrumental and vocal music was presented at Lawrence Memorial chapel Thursday evening before a large audience. The performers, in addition to the Conservatory orchestra, included the high lights of this year's graduating class at the Conservatory, students whose names and talent have become familiar to Appleton music lovers.

The program opened with a melodious Schubert number done by the Conservatory orchestra in its most finished style. The tone quality of the strings was especially attractive. Miss Margaret Martin played the brilliant organ composition "Allegro" by Widor and David Scouler demonstrated the remarkable range and tenderness of his voice in an aria from "Il Trovatore." Verdi, Oscar Hoh played the light and melodious movement of "Concerto No. 6," Mozart, with grace and lightness and exquisite tone quality.

An aria from "Samson and Delilah" and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" were sung with poise by Miss Lois Schilling and Miss Elizabeth Thompson demonstrated a velvety touch and careful interpretation in the attractive Allegro Vivace movement of a Schumann concerto, assisted by the orchestra, and Miss Gladys Ives Brainard at the second piano.

The rapid aria from the "Barber of Seville," was sung by Franklin LeFevre with a freshness of feeling and a beauty of tone that won much applause from the audience.

The program concluded with a brilliant and technical Tchaikowsky Concerto by Everett Roudeshush, accompanied by the orchestra, directed by John Ross Frampton and Miss Ruth Ortmann at the second piano. Mrs. Roudeshush's performance was sure and commanding and he played the music with as much feeling as he presented the more scholarly passages with precision and accuracy.

LODGE NEWS

Third degree rank of Knights was conferred at the meeting of Knights of Pythias Thursday night at Castle hall. Regular business was discussed. A committee of three to take charge of the memorial service June 25 will be appointed later. Plans were made for a picnic to be given Aug. 11. Gilbert Trentlage was in charge of refreshments. The next meeting will be in the fall.

A report of the fourth biennial state convention of the Catholic Daughters of America will be given at the meeting of the local court of Catholic Daughters of America at 7.30 Monday evening. This will be the regular bi-monthly business meeting.

A business session and drill practice took place at the meeting of the Royal Neighbors Thursday evening at Odd Fellow hall. The next meeting will be in two weeks and plans for the annual picnic will be made at that time.

Misses Esther Lutzow and Mable Adams will attend the federation meeting of the Aid Association for Lutherans in Milwaukee Sunday.

ROGER ABRAHAM COUNCILLOR OF DEMOLAY ORDER

Roger Abraham was elected master-counsellor of John E. Ross chapter, Order of DeMolay, Thursday evening at Masonic temple. Other officers elected were: Vincent Burgess, senior counsellor; and Volney Burgess, junior counsellor. Installation of new officers will take place June 20 and will be arranged for by a committee composed of the three new officers and Herman Schwager and Harold Woehler. A committee was appointed to take charge of serving the jubilee dinner of the Masons June 14. Leonard Burhans will act as chairman, and will be assisted by Alvin Woehler and Chester Davis. Thirty members will be chosen to aid the committee in serving the dinner.

A report of the committee for the picnic which took place at High Cliff May 26 was given by Chester Davis. The members decided to meet on the first Thursday of each month during the summer. "Golly" accents were present. John Q. Hansen acted as advisor.

Those who played were Frances Flanagan, Robert Lally, Robert Crab, Francis Flanagan, Robert Langlois, Francis Schoenberg, Thomas Plannier, Allen Warner, Anne Hawley, Jeanette Wood, Jeanette Schuh, Elizabeth Murphy, Ruth Simon, Ellen Driscoll, Evelyn Morrow, Adele Vandenberg, Anna Hawley, Catherine Schuh, Mary Ellen Schuetter, Margaret and Jack Lally, Thomas Plannier, Ethel Melcher, Elizabeth Heckel, Genevieve Heenan, Ethel Melcher, Margaret Walsh, Lucille Bryne, Helen Morrow, Velma Kohler, Audrey Reider, Madeline Lowell, James Van Rooy, William Hegner, Florence Skatery, Romana Wood and Velma Kohler. Three numbers were played by the Toy Symphony orchestra.

The Tynmites By Hal Cochran

The scarecrow looked a sad, sad sight, 'cause he was in an awful plight. He couldn't stand on his own feet, as he sprawled around, he said, "Oh, what am I to do? I feel I can't play with you. It isn't any fun at all, just loafing on the ground."

"Now wait a minute," Scouty cried. "We'll find some plan that can be tried. But in the meantime it will do no good for you to fuss. We are the ones who lent a hand to set you free. Now you must stand. I'm sure that we will make you, if you'll leave it all to us."

Then Clowny snapped, "What is your plan? I'll gladly do all that I can, but I feel sure the scarecrow's not supposed to use his feet. I guess we should have left him there upon the post. It isn't fair to leave him on the cold, cold ground. We Tynites weren't discreet."

All of this time the Goofygoose was wondering just what they could do. And then he had a happy thought. "Oh, listen here," he cried. "We all admit he isn't strong, and that's the one thing that seems wrong. I think he's shy of straw and needs a whole lot more inside."

This made the funny scarecrow at grin. "You're right," he said. "Please stuff some in. Just fill my legs with straw until they both are good and tight. That's sure to make them carry me, and think how happy I will be. Just follow my advice and everything will be all right."

The bunch agreed this plan was great. It seemed that they could hardly wait till they had gathered corn husks. Then the stuffing job began. "Ah, ha," cried Carry. "We are good. We do most everything we should. And can we stuff the scarecrow? Why shucks, you bet we can."

(The Scarecrow takes the Tynites for a walk in the next story.)

All during the preparation, the serving and the eating of the Thanksgiving dinner Tony Tarver felt as if a miracle had happened and that it was the ranky, grubby, harum-scarum little tomboy Tony who was doing these things in that dear, familiar old house — not the young lady, Miss Antoinette Tarver, who, by one of those accidents that do happen in many a Myrtle street, had become "one of the most beautiful and popular of Stanton's debutantes."

Pat Tarver caught her singing. "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home," and there was moisture in his eyes as he crushed her against his big chest. No need for him to say that it seemed like home to him, too. He was obviously at home, and glowing over it. Pat Tarver had never taken the trouble to acquire the veneer which his wife, Peg, would have liked to buy for him, by the yard, to encase his Irish exuberance. So now he had to throw off nothing, but Tony could see him expanding and overflowing. He ate vastly and with loud delight. He roared out jokes and reminiscences of Myrtle street and the "good old days," scarcely letting Sandy's laconic, twinkling-eyed father get a word in edgewise. The two men insisted on helping her clear the dishes and "wash up," making a lark of it even as they pretended to be abused, in the immemorial fashion of Myrtle street husbands.

Then, when she had seen the men settled in deep sprightly comfort in front of the glowing coal stove in the "setting room," as Pop called it, Tony went to the bedroom where Mom Ross lay drowsing, a little overfed and vastly content, her injured foot propped on a big pillow, whose feathers had come with her part of her dowry—from Ireland, thirty years before.

"That you, Tony? ... No, don't run away, da, da. I ain't sleepin'—just sort of chewin' my cud. Draw up a chair and let me look at you," Mrs. Ross urged.

"Mom, I've been thinking all day how much I love Myrtle street," Tony said, when she had obeyed. "And right now I'm half expecting to hear Peg calling me from out that window just over the fence. I remember how she used to call me?—'No, meet 'Nomy' 'Osh-Nomy.' And half the time I'd pretend not to hear, so's I could snatch one more half hour's play with Sandy. I—I think I belong on Myrtle street, Mom."

Mrs. Ross chuckled and shook her grizzled head vigorously. "It's home-sick you are, dearie. But it wouldn't be the same if you come back to it. You're used to silk next your skin and linen sheets to your bed and thick rugs under your feet. The little house next door is a palace to them poor Burnses, what moved to it from a three-room shack, but it'd be a hovel to you now, after what you're rix up to."

Tony shook her own head even more vigorously. "You don't know me then, Mom. I'd still love it, as long as you lived next door. Who are these Burns people?" she added, jealously.

"A widow woman and her daughter," Mrs. Ross answered. Mrs. Burns takes in a couple of boarders and the girl Mary is a clerk in the Banner Store. A love of a girl, Mary is. She's over here nearly every evening and—"

"Is she pretty?" Tony asked quickly, a queer, sharp pain at her heart.

NEXT: Introducing Mary Burns.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR SERVING AT GOLDEN JUBILEE

Arrangements for serving the dinner and supper at the golden jubilee of St. Paul Lutheran church next Sunday were completed at the monthly meeting of the society Thursday afternoon at the church. Ninety members were present and Mrs. Max Russo, Mrs. Adolph Risse, Mrs. Carl Rehbein, Mrs. Fred Reichen, Mrs. John Rehlander, Mrs. William Reichel, Mrs. William Ross and Mrs. Otto Reinholz are the hostesses.

Mrs. Arnold Herrmann will be general chairman of the serving Sunday. Mrs. Huber Stach, Mrs. Walter Laehn and Mrs. Arthur Schroeder are members of the buying committee; Mrs. Claude Stach will be in charge of the dining room and Mrs. Henry Schneider will have charge of the desserts. The next meeting will be July 11 instead of July 4.

CHOIR MEETS TO PLAN FOR SUMMER

Plans for summer activities were discussed at a joint meeting of the Mount Olive church choir and members of the church council in the church parlors Thursday evening. Methods of enlarging the choir and obtaining more cooperation also were discussed.

Talks were given by John Bartmann, choir president, the Rev. R. E. Ziesemer, pastor, H. J. Frank, president of the church council, G. D. Ziegler and other members of the council and choir. Lunch was served by the Ladies Aid society.

WOMEN ATTEND LEGION MEETING

Mrs. Clara Rank, Mrs. Mac Mueller, Mrs. Emma Avers, Mrs. Evelyn Kreutzer, Mrs. Adora Hauer, Mrs. Clara Kosatzke and Mrs. Margaret McGregor, members of Women of Moosehead Legion of this city, attended a meeting of the Oshkosh chapter Thursday night. A business session of the Oshkosh organization was followed by a social hour and refreshments.

NATION TO JOIN WITH STATE FOR G. O. P. BIRTHDAY

Celebration at Ripon on Saturday Will Attract Thousands and There

Ripon — Tomorrow the nation will join with the state of Wisconsin and the city of Ripon in the observance of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Republican party.

Before the "little white schoolhouse" in which was held that epoch-making meeting on March 20, 1854 which gave to a troubled, seething nation a new party in its political arena, Secretary of War James W. Good will officiate in formal exercises commemorating that event, the results of which have been a preponderating influence in the political life of the country for three-quarters of a century.

It will be a momentous gathering — this on the Ripon College campus tomorrow. Present will be thousands from all over Wisconsin, from Minnesota, from Iowa and Illinois, from as far west as California and Washington and as far east as New York. They are coming in special trains, in auto caravans and in individual groups. From Montreal, Canada, word has been received that Sir John Thornton, head of the Canadian National railways, will arrive here tomorrow morning in his private car.

CHICAGO WELL REPRESENTED
Out of Chicago will come the "James W. Good Special" train, carrying a distinguished group of Illinois citizens. Heading the delegation is Samuel M. Hastings, chairman of the board of finance of the Dayton Scale company and former president of the Illinois Manufacturers Association; Ruth Hanna McCormick, Philip Armour, Edward J. Brundage, Fred W. Sargent, Harry Beyer, Julius Rosenwald, Edward Lutzinger, Roy O. West, and a host of other prominent state party leaders.

Iowa, native state of James W. Good, will send its representatives by a special train from Des Moines. Republicans from Minnesota are expected to arrive here tonight, and several Milwaukee delegations will board their special train Saturday morning for this little Wisconsin college town.

LINCOLN VOTERS PRESENT
A group of Lincoln voters will ride in the grand parade which will carry them to the shine wherein was launched the movement which made possible the election of the Great Emancipator to the presidency in 1860. From the original group of fifty-eight descendants who comprised that historic Ripon meeting, six direct descendants will participate in the ceremonies on June 8th. It is proposed to organize at this gathering a permanent association to be known as the "Sons and Daughters of the G. O. P."

Under the eaves of the little white schoolhouse which cradled their party, the Republican women of Wisconsin under the leadership of Mrs. Harry E. Thomas, Sheboygan, national Republican committee-woman, will gather on Saturday morning to organize a state-wide Women's Republican organization, and to begin preparations for next year's campaign. A similar gathering of Republican men is scheduled for 11 o'clock, according to officials of the Ripon celebration.

Governor Walter J. Kohler will be the only speaker other than Mr. W. Good; but the vast crowd will not lack in entertainment. Promptly at 1:30 p. m. the historical parade will leave the parade ground. American and Wisconsin history will be depicted in thirty floats presented by Wisconsin cities. There will be representations from all sections of the state — bands, floats, drum corps, military troops — and all will be headed by an elephant, the symbol of the G. O. P. Early morning visitors will be entertained by nationally famous bands, and guests of the Ripon celebration will have the privilege of driving through the beautiful Lawsonia Country Club from 9 a. m. until noon.

RIPON PRESENTS PAGEANT
Tonight and tomorrow evenings a historical pageant, "A New Birth of Freedom" in eight episodes, will be presented in the Ripon college gymnasium with a cast of 500 characters under the direction of Prof. H. P. Boddy of Ripon college. It will depict the leading events in the history of the United States as well as the important stages in the growth of the Republican party. Not only will the scenes in Ripon be shown, but the story of Jackson, Mich., where the first state convention was held, and the later national convention at Philadelphia will be pictured.

Badger Briefs

Milwaukee — (P) — Arthur Senger, 27, a night patrolman here, entered his bedroom and shot himself through the heart yesterday. He died instantly.

Rhineland — (P) — Soon after he had purchased a pistol, Andrew Klock, 59, of Woodruff, went into a woods and sent a bullet through his head. He was despondent because of poor health.

Eau Claire — (P) — Pleading not guilty to forgery under five counts, John W. Cushman, Chicago, was bound over for trial in circuit court by Judge George L. Blum. He is charged with passing five forged checks totaling $231.15. He was unable to furnish bail of $5,000.

Elkhorn — (P) — Emil Miller, 40, stock buyer here, was instantly killed when a passenger train crashed into his car here Thursday afternoon. V. S. Melker, also an occupant of the car, escaped injury.

SACRAMENTO HOME SALE REPORTED AS BRISK

Sacramento — Sales of homes in the moderate price class are reported to be brisk here. Houses in several newly built up sections have been well disposed of.

Mabel to Be Air Counsel

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willeb, whose resignation as an assistant attorney general of the United States becomes effective June 15, has cast her lot with aviation by becoming counsel for Aviation Corporation. Here she is with Pilot S. P. Gille, as she completed a flight from Durant, Okla., to Waco, Tex. At Waco, she made the commencement address at Baylor University.

SEPARATED TWENTY YEARS AGO, RUSS BROTHERS REUNITED

Chicago — (P) — Twenty years ago pillaging Cossacs descended on a small Russian village, breaking up the Torchin family.

Albert Torchin separated from his brother, and his way to America. Later his brother David, arrived seeing his brother, finally abandoning the search when police reported Albert dead.

Last night David Torchin stood in the lobby of the Congress hotel, chatting with a friend who, like himself, had come here from Baltimore for the Radio Dancers' convention.

Another man strolled by. Torchin's friend recognized him as an acquaintance and called him over, introducing him.

Thus after 20 years David and Albert Torchin brothers, found each other.

PENDING DRY SUITS MUST BE COMPLETED

Madison — (P) — Prosecutions for violation of the state dry law which were pending at the time the Groeschmidt repeal bill was passed are not affected by repeal of the dry law and the prosecutions should be continued, J. E. Messerschmidt, an assistant attorney general, ruled to day in answer to a question propounded by L. W. Bruemmer, district attorney at Kewaunee.

Capital Wonders Whether British Embassy Is "Dry"

Washington — (P) — Another day has passed and still social Washington doesn't know definitely and officially, at any rate, whether the British embassy is going to be "dry." Diplomatic circles and official Washington, meanwhile, seems to be determined not to worry about the question any more—that is, any more than necessary.

The mystery which is puzzling the unofficial contingent and possibly some members of the official contingent when unofficially engaged, seems to rest out of remarks by attaches of the embassy to the effect that published stories based on reports that the ambassador Sir Esme Howard had decided to import no more liquor were not entirely accurate.

The attaches are said to be specific and it is generally recognized that when an individual turned in the language of a plomby stops with such a phrase is not entirely accurate, he can mean almost anything, from disapproval of a minor irrelevant error to virtually complete denial of an entire story.

The social Sherlock Holmeses do know, however, that the ambassador has informed Secretary Stimson that he was contemplating abandonment of the privilege of importing liquor for his embassy. It places no strain on their reasoning powers to see in that a logical sequel to the previously published expression of willingness to stop importing liquor if the American government should suggest such a course. At the same time, it is realized that the word "contemplating" does not necessarily imply that action has already been taken but may as lexiconographers might argue, suggest the opposite.

Several unobscured facts, nevertheless, have emerged from the official and unofficial discussions of the subject. One is that liquor has been served at the embassy since Sir Esme made his public statement. Another is that Secretary Stimson informed the ambassador that the American government was not willing to follow on the long established importation rights and privileges of diplomats and recognize the liquor importations as one of them. And a third is that some members of the diplomatic corps feel that they are not free to relinquish that privilege without specific consent from their own governments, which is not likely to be sought unless the state department requests such action.

Fish Fry, Spranger's Place, Kimberly, Sat. mte, June 8.

OPINION DIVIDED ON SIR ESME'S PROPOSAL

London — (P) — Action of Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador at Washington, in renouncing ambassadorial liquor importation privileges has drawn much attention in London and diplomatic circles.

His opinion was divided as to the propriety of the move. While the newspapers have carried long stories since Sir Esme's public statement on the subject, the opinion is still divided on the propriety of the move.

Several unobscured facts, nevertheless, have emerged from the official and unofficial discussions of the subject. One is that liquor has been served at the embassy since Sir Esme made his public statement. Another is that Secretary Stimson informed the ambassador that the American government

FISH STORE FRONT IS DEMOLISHED BY BOMB

Chicago — (P) — A bomb exploded in the front of Joseph Cohen's fish store on Ashland Ave. early today.

Police suggested that labor racketeers may have been responsible but Cohen who has been in business there 20 years, doubted the theory. "I belong to every fish dealer's association in existence," he said.

GRADUATING CLASS GETS DIPLOMAS AT SCHOOL EXERCISES

Principal Address Is Delivered by Dean E. A. Fitzpatrick of Marquette

Menasha—The graduation exercises of Menasha high school at Butte des Morts gymnasium Thursday night closed the school year. There was a general outpouring of relatives and friends on the class who were available. The high school band played some of the most stirring music, and the Girls' Glee club sang. The salutatorian was Marie Wilfing and the valedictorian Helen Christensen, each of whom uttered cooperation in all of their endeavors.

The commencement speaker was Dean E. A. Fitzpatrick of Marquette university. He too, is a firm believer in cooperation. Instead of finishing their work they are just beginning, he said. Everything they had learned in high school would help them in understanding life. He advised them not to stop learning now. Do not let the end of your schooling be the end of your education. What you will become will depend on how you use these responsibilities, he declared.

PRESENTS DIPLOMAS
Before presenting the diplomas J. E. Kitowski, superintendent of schools, told how he and the board of education were criticized for erecting the new school building on its present site. You will never get people to go away out there, they were repeatedly told. The faculty makes it a practice to put on worth while programs and they have no trouble in filling the building, he said.

Mr. Kitowski also called attention to the work done by the board of education in the last two years. It has not only erected two new school buildings during that time but it has purchased a large amount of equipment and made many alterations in the high school building, he said. Another important thing the board did was to increase the salaries of the teachers which makes it possible to engage and retain the most competent teaching force, he declared.

The Rev. W. B. Polacyk, a member of the school board, offered the invocation and benediction. Selections played by the band included the class march, On Wisconsin, Shades of Night and Stars and Stripes Forever. Girls' Glee club selections were Flower, Pinguet, Little Three Gays, Mendelssohn, (trio), Little Pique, Helen Goss, Leone Landig, Morning Invitation, Vezzie.

Class roll: Lloyd Adams, Elsie Bredinski, Viola Burchard, Mary Corry, Helen Christensen, Edward Dix, Lyle Eckrich, Roman Funk, Clarence Goss, Jerome Goss, Margaret Gummow, Philip Herbold, Hilbert Jankowski, Walter Klenke, Richard Kelly, Anna Kuschner, Ethel Landig, Leone Landig, Genevieve Liebl, Austin Longworth, Bertha McAndrew, Harvey Meyer, Joseph Prunuske, Margaret Ryan, Sylvester Schierl, Milton Schreiner, Owen Sensenbrenner, Arthur Snyder, Benjamin Thomas, Christy Walter, Marie Wilfing, Billy Yates.

Eighth grade class roll: Winifred Anderson, Daniel Beach, Elton, Beatrice Gordon, Florence Henz, Iva, Ethel Braun, Florence Henz, Iva, Poth, Hugh Gear, Gladys Gerrie, Sarah Heckrodt, Loretta Lane, Jack Leopold, Virginia Mack, Ronald McKelley, Elaine Oederman, Ruth Reiderhouser, John Reimer, Isabelle Schultz, Ervin Springburn, Kenneth Stepanke, Howard Stoppel, George Thompson, Mildred Webster, Leona Berman, Helen Anderson, Mary Jane Hendt, Elmer Eide, Florence Buss, John Demle, Ted Eide, Sybil Gear, Russell Gmeiner, Edith Gorman, Harvey Held, Mildred Herman, Dorothy Karrow, Grafton Kling, Blanche Klinker, Jean Lofley, Merlan Lopez, Letha Mertz, Mary Moore, Milton Nourse, Ethel Pagel, Viola Pate, Rose Pomeroy, Emily Ponter, Evelyn Russell, Edward Spicer, Earl Tavis, Robert Henry, Milan Uzakowski, Spencer Brokap.

DEMOLAYS COMPLETE CONFERENCE PLANS

VESUVIUS STILL GRUMBLES LOUDLY

Villagers Praise Patron Saints for Intervening on Their Behalf

Naples—(AP)—Renewed spasms deep within the crater of Vesuvius today disquieted residents of the village about its base. The villagers late yesterday returned to their homes and erected thanksgiving tabernacles for their patrons saints on street corners.

The Vesuvius observatory had reported the lava flow stopped and the pools of white hot rock rapidly congealing when the new subterranean tumult was felt, the explosions within the volcano shaking the grounds so that doors and windows miles away rattled.

Liquid fountains of liquid fire sprang up within the crater, and lasted for several minutes and many missiles in the shape of lumps of molten lava and boulders were flung up from the cone.

Terzigno proper was hardly touched by the lava flow, which encircled the city. The inhabitants believed Saint Gennaro, patron saint of Naples, had intervened in their behalf and improvised tabernacles at the street corners for images of him and other saints.

Flowers were placed in front of the shrines and religious feeling was at its height. A tabulation of damage caused thus far showed that 50 houses were destroyed these containing 147 habitations occupied by 78 families. One hundred and 25 acres of land were covered by lava, 90 being vineyard and a farm land and the remainder forest.

JURY CAN'T AGREE IN POISONED BOOZE CASE

Peoria, Ill.—(AP)—The jury in the case of Morris Mansfield, charged with murder in connection with liquor deaths, reported this morning that it was unable to reach a verdict and was discharged by Judge J. L. J. The jury had been out 40 hours.

Mansfield was indicted for six of more than a score of deaths in Peoria caused by poison liquor. He was alleged to have been the wholesaler of the liquor in connection with six deaths.

The trial, on which the jury disagreed concerned only the death of Henry Huddleston, and Mansfield was charged with first degree murder.

The case was given to the jury late Wednesday afternoon after the defense had put only one witness on the stand. He was Dr. Ralph Webster, Chicago professor and toxicologist, who testified it was impossible to determine the cause of death without chemical analysis of the viscera. The state made no such analysis.

SCARLET FEVER VICTIM FLEES FROM HOSPITAL

Milwaukee—(AP)—Clad only in hospital attire and a bathrobe, Laura Nicolata, 21, a scarlet fever patient, escaped from a hospital here Thursday afternoon. The girl is said to have left the hospital while nurses and attendants were at lunch, hailed a taxicab and driven to her home. Health officers were refused admittance at the girl's home, her parents denying that she was there.

JOINT COMMISSION MOVES INTO CANADA

Vita, Manitoba—(AP)—Members of the international joint commission moved across the boundary from Roseau, Minn., into Canada today to take testimony which will complete their hearings on flood relief along the Roseau river.

The commission opened its hearing at Roseau yesterday when testimony was taken from Canadian and United States representatives relating to the effects of a dike and dam project undertaken in Manitoba to relieve flood conditions on the Roseau river.

The hearing is to be concluded here late today, after which the commission, composed of three representatives from Canada and three from the United States, will take under advisement the problem of flood relief along the Roseau river which in 1919 inundated more than 100,000 acres in Roseau-co alone.

Whether the Canadian and Manitoba governments should be permitted to continue with their private relief project is the foremost problem confronting the commission. Minnesota and United States representatives told the commission that the dike and dam project in Manitoba will increase danger of floods in Roseau and Kittson-co in Minnesota, while the Canadians took exception from this contention.

Il Duce And Church End Old Dispute

was not so tremendous as when the treaties were first signed at the Lateran palace, the joy of the populace was shown by the cheering crowds outside St. Peter's when the premier entered and left the Vatican grounds.

EFFECTIVE AT ONCE

From the moment of the exchange the Lateran treaties entered into full vigor and effect. The new governor of Vatican City, Commendatore Camillo Serafini, entered officially upon his duties and the Swiss guard took up posts at the new entrances to the Vatican territory.

The great bronze doors opening out upon the colonnade of St. Peter's square which remained half shut for 59 years were opened wide as a significant symbol of the new state of things.

Observators Romano this afternoon published the full text of the Lateran accords, the documents relative to ratification and the new law of the papal state which was prepared by the lawyer, Francesco Pacelli, intermediary for the pope and Mussolini during the two years of negotiations.

The exchange also made effective the financial provisions of the Lateran treaties by which the Vatican received bonds for 1,000,000,000 lire (about $32,000,000). The latter cash about $39,000,000. This latter was given the Holy See in the form of a letter of credit on the Bank of Italy. The Vatican will open a running account with that institution.

The premier spent three-quarters of an hour within the Vatican. He was accompanied by members of his cabinet including the ministers of justice and finance, several undersecretaries, the chief of the government press bureau and his personal secretary. He was received by Monsignor Giuseppe Pizzardo, undersecretary of state and Prof. Francesco Pacelli, Vatican lawyer who played a large part in the negotiations of the treaty.

The premier was then escorted to the congregation hall by Monsignor Borgognini Duca where Cardinal Gasparri was waiting. Here he was changed was met by the texts of the treaty, the Italian one having been signed by King Victor Emmanuel and the church one by Pope Pius XI.

PLEDGE OBSERVANCE

Premier Mussolini and Cardinal Gasparri composed a process verbal in which they stated their "reciprocal loyalty and sincere wish to observe the letter and spirit of the Lateran accords."

The process recognizes the pope's sovereignty and the status of Catholicism as the state religion in Italy. Cardinal Gasparri signed this and then Premier Mussolini after which they talked together for 15 minutes.

Finance Minister Mosconi then gave the cardinal a check on the Bank of Italy for 750,000,000 lire (about $39,000,000) representing the first payment of the financial convention arranged at the time that the treaty was drawn up.

Outside the Vatican, the conclusion of the signing was marked by opening the doors of St. Peter's which had been half-closed, according to the Italian custom of mourning for the dead, since 1870. A great crowd gathered before the doors to see the Swiss guards take their position there and also before the entrance to the Vatican to the left of St. Peter where a company of Swiss guards, bearing rifles with bayonets, instead of their customary spears, had formed.

LIBERAL REGIME LOSES IN SASKATCHEWAN VOTE

Regina, Sask.—(AP)—The Liberal government, which has been in power in Saskatchewan for more than 25 years, conceded defeat today when returns indicated the party was running behind in 49 of the 61 districts in the provincial general election.

Returns from 60 districts showed the conservative party in the lead with eight legislative seats conceded and candidates running ahead of opposition for 19 others. The Liberals had six seats conceded and in lead for 15.

The Progressives had captured one seat and were leading in three districts. The independents had three seats and led in five.

The Liberal government in the campaign, W. G. Baker of Moose Jaw City, a member of the last legislature, was defeated.

Two cabinet members, S. J. Latta, minister of municipal affairs and provincial secretary, and C. M. Hamilton, minister of Agriculture, were defeated.

Five Labor Appointments Already Mentioned at Certainty

London —(P)— Much of the composition of the new Labor cabinet of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was disclosed today in official Labor quarters.

Five appointments were listed as certain. They were:

J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal, a post of little duty which will allow him to be minister in charge of unemployment. He was secretary of state for the colonies in the former MacDonald government.

Arthur Henderson, minister for foreign affairs. Henderson was home secretary in the first Labor government and had been president of the Labor and Socialist international since 1926.

Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, replacing Winston Churchill. He will hold again his post in the first MacDonald government.

John R. Clynes, home secretary. He was lord privy seal in the 1924 government.

OTHER PROBABLE APPOINTEES

In addition appointments of three others were regarded as virtually certain. They were:

Sir John Sankey, to lord high chancellor, giving up his lifetime post of lord justice of appeal.

William Allen Jowitt, K. C., attorney general. He was elected M. P. from Preston as a Liberal. The Herald today announced he had joined the Labor party.

Viscount Chelmsford, secretary of state for India. He was former viceroy of India and first lord of the admiralty.

The following were considered probabilities for remaining offices: Arthur Greenwood, who was under secretary for health in the last Labor government, to become minister of health.

William Graham, former financial secretary of the treasury, to become president of the board of trade.

Tom Shaw, former minister of labor, to become minister for war.

Wedgewood Benn, who abandoned the Liberals in 1927 to become first lord of the admiralty; Sir Charles Trevelyan to resume as minister of education.

In addition Miss Margaret Bondfield who was parliamentary secretary to the ministry of labor in the 1924 government almost certainly will receive some post of cabinet position. She will be the first woman to achieve that honor.

In all prospective appointments none has created the stir as has that of William Jowitt, Labor proselyte from Liberal ranks. Returned to parliament with Jowitt last week was Tom Shaw, probable war ministry appointee and an out and out Laborite. The Liberal papers today, speaking of Jowitt's defection said there had been an alliance in Preston between him and Shaw to support each other and charged that a mixed vote had elected both.

Aloysius Gage, 420 W. Fifth-st., returned home Tuesday from Milwaukee where he has been attending Marquette university.

FLIRTING FLAPPER PROVES TO BE MAN, HALF CENTURY OLD

Milwaukee —(P)— Henry!

Shame!
At 1 o'clock a. m., today Patrolman Caspar Neustetter and Fred Passow saw a "flapper" standing on Third-st., flirting with passing motorists. "Flirting with motorists is passe in Milwaukee," muttered Neustetter and Passow to themselves, "and at 1 o'clock in the morning—"

And so they arrested the "flapper" who turned out to be Henry Weber, 52.

Flashes of Life

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York—John Waldo Green, Harvard graduate and son of a wealthy realty operator, is foregoing fortune for an Pan alley. He is becoming a Wall-st job in order to become a song writer on his own with no salary at all. Dad insists that with such a change son must support himself. A young lady is confident he will succeed. With news of his shift came announcement of his engagement to Miss Carol Falk.

Atlantic City, N. J.—A billionaire is in debt to the tune of 2 cents. Henry Ford had to borrow to buy a Thomas A. Edison Commemorative stamp. He came all the way to make a speech at the National Electric Light convention, which is paying special tribute to Edison in connection with the golden jubilee of incandescent light. The speech was 27 words long: "We build at Dearborn 8,000 complete electric light plants every day. This being an electrical meeting, I thought I'd like to tell you that, thank you."

New York—Mrs. Dorcas Caruso, widow of the tenor, is in business. She is in personal charge of a studio in her name which makes quick sound records of anything a customer desires, from a greeting to a sales letter.

New Brunswick, N. J.—A scholar is going into big league baseball. Michael de Mucchio, undefeated pitcher of Rutgers university, is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. This season he has a no hit game to his credit and an astonishing number of strikeouts. Three big clubs have been sizing him up.

New York—Joie Ray is after new laurels. Mitter and marathoner, he is now planning to enter a ski-day roller skating race.

North Sydney, N. S.—Having caught a cod containing a diamond bracelet, Homer LeBlanc of Adler Point, humble fisherman, has visions of becoming a magnate, with a schooner of his own and everything. He has refused an offer of $75 for the bracelet hoping it is one dropped overboard by the passenger of an ocean liner and be worth thousands.

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS INJURED IN CAR CRASH

Waupaca—John Gorman of New London suffered a broken nose and other facial bruises and Anton Swenson of Iowa had his right hand badly cut at 11:30 Thursday night when the touring car in which they were riding crashed into a telephone pole on Highway 54, about four miles west of Waupaca. The car was demolished. The injured men were taken to a Waupaca hospital where they were confined until Friday morning. Both are employees of a construction company building a road near the city.

Sam Hilkowitz, 522 N. Rankin-st., will leave Saturday morning for a tour of the south.

ACTORS' EQUITY TO "FIGHT TO FINISH" IN CONTRACT ACTION

President Says Motion Picture Producers Must Yield to Demands

Los Angeles, Calif.—(P)— Frank Gilmore, president of the Actors' Equity association, today predicted a "fight to the finish" with the Association of Motion Picture Producers over contracts for talking pictures.

Two members of the equity association, Gilmore announced, have refused to sign motion picture contracts under the producers' terms. Gilmore declined to reveal the actors' names but added that equity did not plan a walkout in the controversy.

Equity, in asking for new working agreements with the picture producers, demanded that the producers hire only actors in good standing in the organization and sought to establish a 48-hour week with double time for overtime.

Maintaining the demand was an attempt to force a virtual "closed shop" on the industry, the producers stated they would continue to engage artists for productions only under the "fair and just form of contract" which was prepared by representatives of both producers and motion picture actors. They declined flatly to be restricted by equity's demand.

ACADEMY STAYS ALOOF

An impasse was reached with the producers' decision. The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, of which Douglas Fairbanks is head, announced it would take no part in the controversy.

The academy, of which both equity and the producers' association are member organizations, drew up the contract form which had been in use for 18 months.

Gilmore said Equity's campaign for recognition in motion pictures would be one of constantly applied pressure.

"We will win eventually," Gilmore said, "for producers will find it impossible to secure casts."

Contemplating a drawn out siege, Gilmore said a benefit fund for unemployed actors would be raised by equity. He said donations would be asked and benefit shows given if necessary.

THINK FIREBUG ACTIVE IN MANITOWOC REGION

Manitowoc —(P)— The cause of several mysterious barn fires in the town of Rapids today was thought to be the work of a firebug, after William Schramm discovered a blaze in his barn, extinguished it and found a box of oil-soaked paper and rags.

Two weeks ago the barn on the farm of Joseph Miller, a neighbor of Schramm, was destroyed by a fire that could not be explained. Incendiarism was suspected as several other barns had been destroyed by equally mysterious fires only a short time before. Sheriff Herman Cartens is investigating.

Lndy and Anne's Honeymoon Launch

This may be the elusive Lindbergh's honeymoon boat. For a "tall blond young man" virtually identical as the flying colonel—stopped at Block Island off Newport, R. I., Sunday took motor launch and sailed away. The speedy, 25-foot, two cabin cruiser, built at Long Beach, was bought recently by Colonel Lindbergh and it was believed that he and his bride were there spending their honeymoon on the waters of Long Island Sound.

SEVEN BOYS SIGN FOR CAMP ONAWAY

Seven youngsters of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. have signed for Camp Onaway, association camp at Onaway Island, Chain of Lakes, Waupaca, according to C. C. Bailey, boys' work secretary. The camp period will open the early part of July. Camp literature and application blanks can be secured from Mr. Bailey at the Y. M. C. A.

Attendee Convention.
Donald Schlafke, 219 N. Rankin-st., returned Friday morning from Chicago where he attended the National radio show. About twenty-five thousand people visited the show this week.

Equipped to Furnish Completely The Home of Every June Bride

Daughters of women who furnished their homes with our assistance years and years ago—are consulting us and buying the fittings for their honeymoon houses, here now. And the same trust and confidence that went with those early purchases goes with these latter-day ones. For the years have provided the style-rightness, comfortableness and quality of our merchandise to be always exactly as represented. We are equipped now to furnish completely the home of every spring bride in Appleton. And to do it well, achieving comfortableness and fashionableness that will endure for years—at reasonable expense.

Living Room

The furnishings in this attractive Living Room display may be had at a very moderate price.

- 2 pc. Mohair Suite $120.00

LANG TROPHY WON BY PETER HANSON AT CLASS PROGRAM

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hanson Adjudged Best All-around Student

Kaukauna—Peter Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hanson, route 2, won the Lang trophy at the class exercises of Kaukauna high school in the high school auditorium Thursday evening. He was selected as the best all-around student of the high school by a committee of five faculty members and was presented with the cup by Principal Olin G. Dryer.

Francis Grogan, president of the senior class, presided at the exercises. The class history was read by Misses Dorothy Goldin and Marjorie Thuring. Peter Hanson, Frances Elsworth and Donald Kenney read the class will. John Taylor and Gordon Nicholson read the class prophecy and the class poem was read by Miss Irene Landreman.

The Lang trophy was then presented by Principal Dryer, who said that the award was made on the scholastic average and attitude to the school and its activities. He also read the names of the students in the school who had a perfect attendance record for the year. Freshmen are Joy Doering, R. Eislein, Kenneth Heindel, M. Hildebrandt, D. McCormick, H. Starke and C. Wolfinger. Sophomores are Misses L. Foxgrover, Charlotte Hallock, M. McMahon and Herman Maes. Juniors are J. Whitaker, F. Rastal, A. Regenruss, Wilbur Haase, R. Bruchek, G. Foxgrover, R. Beyer, Paul Daneman, and Alice Balgie. Seniors are Melvin Albert, Edna Esler, C. Goetzman, G. Nicholson, E. Regenruss and C. Rodol.

The program was concluded with distributing mementoes to the members of the graduating class by Misses Monna Wright, Helen Nettekoven and Beatrice Bisels.

Commencement exercises will take place at 8:15 Friday night in the auditorium. The annuals which did not arrive from the printers in time to be distributed Thursday evening will be given out Friday night. Dr. E. A. Fitzpatrick of Marquette university at Milwaukee will deliver the commencement address.

SOFTBALL PLAYERS MAY ORGANIZE LEAGUE

Kaukauna—Plans are being made by local softball players to organize the Twilight Softball league next week.

A game probably will be played between the Mulford and Bankers again Monday. In the encounter Wednesday the Bankers nosed out a 4 to 3 win. Other teams of the old league which probably will be entered in the league will be the Thilmans and Electricians. The Kaukauna Times also will enter a team. Games are played on the softball grounds in the rear of the library. If the league is organized games will be played on four evenings a week. About 60 players will be included in the various teams.

MRS. HURST'S SISTER IS BURIED AT GRESHAM

Kaukauna—Mrs. John Hurst was called to Gresham last week by the death of her sister, Mrs. Theodore Burnette. Mrs. George Phillips and Mrs. Fred Reichel of this city also attended the funeral. Pall bearers were nephews of the deceased. They were Elmore Beaulieu of Neopit, John Hurst, Jr., Fred and Joseph Hurst, George Phillips, Jr., and Francis Reichel of Kaukauna. Mrs. Burnette was a daughter of Ruben Beaulieu after whom Beaulieu hill is named.

SCHEDULE PREPARED FOR SWIMMING POOL

Kaukauna—A summer schedule for swimming hours at the municipal swimming pool is being drawn up this week and probably will go into effect next Monday. The new schedule will give boys and girls three afternoons each week to swim and one night each for ladies and men. The present schedule has the pool open for only one period on most week days. Swimmers are increasing with the warm weather.

GUN CLUB MEMBERS TO ATTEND WAUPACA SHOOT

Kaukauna—Several members of the Kaukauna Gun club will attend the third registered shoot of the Northeastern Wisconsin Trapshooting league Sunday at Waupaca. Clubs from Kaukauna, Green Bay, DePere, Oconto and Oshkosh will be represented at the shoot. Prizes will be awarded to the high gun men.

NEW PAPER MONEY ON DISPLAY AT BANKS

Kaukauna—Displays of the new small bills which will go into circulation about July 10 are being made at the local banks. The displays are of $1, $2, $5 and $10 bills which are $5 2-3 as large as present bills. The displays were sent to local banks by the federal reserve bank of this district.

The Post-Crescent's representative at Kaukauna is Lloyd Derus. His telephone number is 194-W. Business with The Post-Crescent may be transacted through Mr. Derus.

HOLD MUSIC CONTEST AT HOLY CROSS SCHOOL

Kaukauna—Music students of the Holy Cross school held a music contest Thursday afternoon at the school. Winners were: "Dance of the Dolls," Misses Cordell Maue and Frances Kline; "A Day in May," Misses Genevieve Burns and Caroline Kalista; "Traveler's Song," Misses Adeline Eiting and Janet McCarthy; "Smile of Spring," Miss Mary Ann Kalista and William Eiting; and Misses Marie VanDyke, Thelma Derus, Lorraine Haessly, Frances Hiltgenberg, Helen Hopfer, Spencer, Pearl Wagner, Marie Rueter, Mary VanLieshout and Joyce Roberts.

TIMMERS DIES OF BLOOD POISONING

Sliver in Hand Proves Fatal to Employee of Thilmany
Sulphate Mill

Kaukauna—Nick Timmers, 49, died from blood poisoning at Appleton at 9:45 Thursday evening. He ran a sliver into his hand while working at the Thilmany Sulphate mill last Friday and was taken to Appleton Tuesday.

He was born in Kaukauna and has lived here all his life. Besides his widow he is survived by five daughters, Ella, Gertrude, Rosella, Mabel and Dorothy, all of Kaukauna; four sons, Theodore of Milwaukee, William and Richard of Kaukauna and Nick of Brevard, N. C.; and one sister, Mrs. T. G. Taggart.

The funeral will be held at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning at St. Mary church with the Rev. C. Ripp in charge. Burial will be in the Holy Cross cemetery.

Social Items

Kaukauna—All members of the Knights of Columbus, Kaukauna council No. 1033, are requested by Grand Knight William T. Sullivan to meet at 7:30 Friday evening to offer prayers for Joseph Lehrer, Sr. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock Monday morning and the knights are asked to be present at the funeral.

Holy Name society of St. Marys church will meet at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the church hall.

The Social Union of Brokaw Memorial church met Thursday afternoon in Epworth Home. Hostesses were Mesdames F. Charlesworth, A. H. Frank, J. McGregor, V. Thyron, and Mrs. P. Kirkwood.

Ladies Aid society of Immanuel Reformed church met Thursday afternoon at the church assembly.

The Lady Eagles held their annual picnic at the "Roll In" cottage at Green Bay Thursday. A chicken dinner and supper was served. About 15 attended the picnic.

MONTHLY PIG FAIR IS SCHEDULED SATURDAY

Kaukauna—The monthly pig fair for June will be held Saturday on Dodge-st. Hundreds of farmers from this vicinity are expected to attend to buy or sell small pigs and other farm animals. The merchants are arranging special bargains for the day.

30 NORMAL STUDENTS LEAVE FOR MADISON

Kaukauna—About 30 students of the Outagamie Rural Normal school left Thursday morning on a three-day commencement trip to Madison. The group will return Saturday. Visits will be made at Portage, the dells at Kilbourn, Devils Lake, and the state capitol at Madison. The trip takes the place of commencement exercises.

PAPER MILL WILL CLOSE ON JUNE 15

Approximately 75 Men Will Be Thrown Out of Work in About One Week

Kaukauna—Operations of the Kaukauna Paper mill will cease permanently on or about Saturday, June 15, according to R. H. Jacoby, resident manager. Notice that the mill would be shut down was first given the first of May. Officials reported that the plant could not be operated profitably.

About 75 men will be thrown out of work with the closing of the plant, which is one of the oldest in the city. Last fall the bag department of the mill was moved to Orange, Tex.

EAGLE BALL TEAM IS SEEKING MORE GAMES

Kaukauna—Leo Schlezewski, manager of the Eagles ball team, is looking for games for the team. It was organized about two months ago. The team played at Stockbridge last Sunday and won 8 to 1. Practices are held several times a week at the Polo grounds.

SALARY RESOLUTIONS APPROVED BY SENATE

Madison—(AP)—Sen. Thomas M. Duncan's resolutions cutting out all constitutional provisions with reference to salaries of governor and lieutenant governor were given final approval by the senate Thursday. Adoption of these resolutions by two sessions of the legislature and approval of the proposals by a referendum would result in placing authority for fixing these salaries in the hands of the legislature.

First Chicago Slayer Traced By His Weapons

Chicago—(AP)—Fashions in homicide have changed elaborately since Cook county's earliest murder of record, but ultra-modern detective methods are strikingly like those used to fasten guilt upon the first slayer.

Chicago now is tracing killers through clues left by their weapons, and that is precisely what happened to one Joe Morris, or Norris, in 1836. Joe's work had none of the frills that today's stylists would demand. It was plain and unadorned. A stranger, whose name is lost in the years, had a sum of money and Joe wanted it. He got it by clouting the gent over the head with a pound weight, wrapped in a shirt, and then stabbing him with a knife.

Both knife and weight corresponded to the wounds, and Joe swung from the walnut tree, despite his denials. The jury was out six hours. From the scaffold he attempted to picture himself as a sort of Robin Hood, who "stole from the rich and gave to the poor" but they drove the wagon out from under him before he became convincing.

Feeling in Chicago forced the case to be heard in the "wilderness" of Iroquois county, and even then Joe was guarded by 24 frontiersmen. He almost escaped by breaking his fetters, but was taken in the act. He was buried, ironically enough, at a spot known as "Bunkum." Later his body was disinterred for research and it is recorded that one of the resurrectionists later died

KOHLER'S PLANE WILL BE HANDY SATURDAY

Madison—(AP)—Gov. Walter J. Kohler faces a busy day Saturday and opined that if it was not for his airplane he would be unable to fill his engagements.

In the morning he is slated to receive an honorary degree from Lake Forest (Ill.) college and in the afternoon he is to speak at the Republican commemoration at Ripon, Wis. The flying governor will use his plane to fill these engagements.

THAT'S TOO BAD

from exposure incurred while employed in opening the grave. Thus the first killing had its innocent bystander.

CHICAGO COMMITTEE STUDIES TAX PUZZLE

Chicago—(AP)—Twenty-seven business men, urged by the plea that Chicago, Cook county and other local governments face impending bankruptcy due to delay in collecting 1928 taxes, have been named as a citizens' advisory committee to see what can be done in the emergency. The men were named at a conference of representatives of the county board, the city council and heads of the county and city efficiency departments. Bankers, lawyers and merchants are included among the 27. The conference yesterday pointed out that 1928 taxes will not be collected until the summer of 1930, a delay that none of the local governments can stand because of strained credits.

MOTOR OILS You can trust

Polarine

It's a hard life for the modern motor! Traffic is congested. Engines are built with higher compressions. Cars are driven faster. Motors run hotter. Correct lubrication is more important than ever before. Only the richest and sturdiest motor oil will stand up under the strain!

Polarine will do it! Polarine is rich—sturdy—steadfast! It covers every frictional surface of the engine with a protecting cushion of oil.

By draining the crankcase every 500 miles and refilling with fresh Polarine, you insure satisfactory lubrication of your car—at minimum cost.

Iso=Vis

Iso=Vis is an oil of unusual quality. It lubricates the engine faithfully—to stand up under the strain of today's driving. Like Polarine, Iso=Vis is rich and sturdy and steadfast.

No need to drain the crankcase so frequently if you use Iso=Vis. This new type, constant viscosity motor oil gives a new type of lubrication service. It will not thin out! It wears and wears and wears!

For smooth motor miles—and a long life to your engine—use Polarine or Iso=Vis. They are dependable products of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). They are the motor oils you can trust.

At any Standard Oil Service Station, and at most garages

Annual Convention Will Be Held June 17 and 18 in Northern City

Ashland —(AP)— District attorneys and assistants from all of Wisconsin will gather at Ashland June 17 and 18 in regular annual convention and a program which will feature a number of prominent district attorneys as well as state officers has been planned and announced. Local arrangements are being handled by G. Arthur Johnson, district attorney of Ashland county.

Herman C. Runge, Sheboygan county district attorney, will preside at the session, and it is expected that there will be more than 100 district attorneys and assistants at the two-day convention.

District attorney G. Arthur Johnson will deliver the address of welcome which will be followed by the president's response and the reading of the minutes and report by J. K. Callahan, secretary and treasurer. On the first day there also will be an evening banquet with speeches by G. N. Risjord, circuit judge of the fifteenth circuit, who will speak on "Bench and Bar." Attorney General John W. Reynolds whose subject will be "What a Lawyer and District Attorney Should Read," and H. A. Minahan, deputy attorney general with the subject "The Attorney General and the Legislator." On the afternoon of the first day there will be an excursion with attorneys of the fifteenth judicial circuit.

On the second day of the session, a talk on "Extradition" by Joseph E. Messerschmidt, assistant attorney general, G. A. Johnson, and Atorney K. J. Callahan, will open the business of the day. Oscar Lee, warden of the state prison, will speak on "Prison Life and Work." "Legislation" is the subject of a talk by Franklin E. Bump, assistant attorney general. Attorney George A. Bowman, Attorney George E. O'Connor and Attorney Clinton G. Price. In the afternoon, the subject "District Attorneys Bulletin" featuring Attorney Frank E. Moses, Attorney Grover M. Stapleton, Attorney William M. Gleiss, Attorney Grover L. Broadfoot and Attorney Herman C. Runge will be heard. Directly following this there will be an open forum discussion.

The convention will close late on the afternoon of June 18 following election of officers and designation of convention city.

WHIPPED, SUES DAD

Butler, Mo.—The outcome of a whipping administered Chloe Ehart, 22, by her father, is a damage suit filed against him by her for $10,000, and the seeking of a divorce by her mother. Sylvester E. Ehart, his daughter charged, "has become fanatical" after a religious revival. On her arrival home after a winter roast her dad whipped her.

FLUVIOLOGY NEEDED IN AMERICA, CLAIM

River Science — 'Twould
Cut Flood Losses

Honolulu —(AP)— Private wealth has a supreme opportunity in the center of the American continent to create the new science of fluviology, said Dr. T. A. Jaggar, Jr. one of the world's foremost volcanologists, here recently. He was referring at the time to the overflow of the Mississippi river in 1927 when many persons were drowned. The property loss was $300,000,000 and eight states were affected.

Fluviology, said Dr. Jaggar, would have to be based on the same general basis as volcanology, that is, human-made, experimental and scientific recording.

"It is clear that a humane motive exists in fluviology or river science," he continued, "along with the need for experiment, and the making of scientific records strictly in the domain of pure science, unaffected by politics, bureaucracy or commerce."

"If I were a millionaire I would certainly found a Mississippi river observatory. The work of such a station would be more interesting, more exciting, more human, and would be quicker to yield than the volcano observatory."

My vision of a Mississippi research laboratory is an endowment of 25 million dollars as a mere beginning. A headquarters might well be at St. Louis for laboratories, and for receiving reports and for publication. There should be a laboratory of river physics, for hydraulics, gravity, geodesy, and seismology; a laboratory of river geology, for erosion, silting, uplift, subsidence and mapping; a laboratory of river chemistry, for solution, suspension, colloids and analyses; a laboratory of river biology, for bacteria, plants, worms, molluscs and fish, and lastly, a laboratory of river meteorology, for the study of the weather which would be necessary."

THE WOMAN PAYS

Madison —According to the Daily Cardinal, student publication of the University of Wisconsin, the average woman student spends $148.80 more per year for her education than the average man. The survey revealed that the entire student body spent $8,555,531 a year, and that the average expenditure was $302.

TWO AIRPLANES HOPE TO TAKE OFF TOMORROW

Old Orchard, Me. —(AP)— A storm spot along the ocean coast of the monoplanes Green Flash and Yellow Bird propose to follow to Europe today marked the best weather map the American and French fliers have received in nearly three weeks of waiting. They hope to get away tomorrow.

Plans for a take-off today were halted when Dr. James H. Kimball of the New York weather bureau advised Lewis A. Tancy and Roger

Q. Williams of the Green Flash, that rain and winds of gale force were prevalent 1,200 miles off the coast. The delay gave Jean Assolant and Yves Le Gall, French aviators, time to scrape the upper wings of the Yellow Bird preparatory to giving them another coat of paint. Assolant said they expected Armeno Lott, third member of the crew, to arrive from New York tonight.

COTTON INDUSTRY IS APT TO LOSE PRINCIPAL BUYER

General Electric Company
Will Eliminate Converters
Soon

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright, 1929, by Cong. Press
New York—Textile manufacturers, already complaining of the general depression in their industry, can be prepared for another blow which will be a severe shock to some sections of the trade. This became evident Thursday when information was obtained by the writer that the leader in the electric equipment manufacturing field is prepared to eliminate the cotton converters from its purchasing calculations.

The General Electric company in the near future will buy its gray goods direct and do its own converting. This will materially affect the bleachers and the bias tape manufacturers, who have been selling the big company thousands of yards of goods a month for use in the insulation of wires. The bias tape is cut from the rolls of tubular goods and is passed through a bath of rubber composition which renders it non-conductive.

Moreover, it is well established that experiments of the General Electric have reached a stage where it is possible and probable that they will eliminate cotton fabric entirely as an insulating medium.

SITUATION UNCERTAIN

The demand for cotton goods which has been built up through the efforts of the cotton institute any more than make up for these defections, but buyer resistance to any increase in prices is still extremely strong. The consumers feel that they can buy "when, as an if" they choose and they are not hurrying to fill any further requirements. In fact a decided feeling of uncertainty has been injected into the cotton textile situation by the strikes in the south. This is not due to the closing down of the mills, reduction of production is something all have been working for. But many New England mills have gone south because labor there was believed to be satisfied, well treated and working on a lower level so far as actual money was concerned than in New England, although perhaps not more cheaply when relative living costs are considered. The partly successful efforts to organize the southern mill workers have caused uneasiness in the north as well as in the south and among the tire fabric plants as well as among the cloth producers.

To add to the complications, the price of raw cotton is extremely likely to show increases rather than declines. The acreage seems likely to be large but hundreds of thousands of cotton acres have been water covered by the Mississippi floods. The boll weevil can always be counted on for more or less damage. The period between now and picking time is sufficient to allow for many unfavorable weather conditions.

The tariff bill, according to the best advices which reach the cotton and cotton goods trades, is not likely to be passed and signed before September and perhaps not then.

Its terms affecting the white staple are still uncertain and even if the most favorable suggestions are adopted, the effect, so far as foreign competition is concerned, is decidedly uncertain.

INDUSTRY HEADED RIGHT

This is all the dark side of the picture. But it must not be taken to mean that the outlook is hopeless for profits or anything like it. The cotton industry has at least gotten on the right road. It has not gone far but it has started. Most factors are now trying to make and sell what the public wants instead of what they think the public should have. This tendency is still resisted by some of the die-hards of the old autocratic school of sea captains who would knock a man down with a baying pin for passing to windward of them on deck; but their opposition is dying out.

Some plants are doing remarkably well. An instance, which is only one of a goodly number, is the Royal Weaving company of Pawtucket, makers of cotton yarns, dress goods and linings, which has been operating at steadily increasing earnings, with a net income of $769,048 in 1928 as compared with $418,823 in 1927. Last month it was able to declare an extra dividend of $10 a share.

UNIVERSITY SPEAKERS ON LIBRARY PROGRAM

Madison —(P)—When the fourth Summer Library conference is conducted here July 1 to 15, it will have university speakers on the program, and will feature President Glenn Frank of the University, and Mrs. Zona Gale Breese, widely known author. This was announced today by the Wisconsin Free Library commission, in charge of the conference.

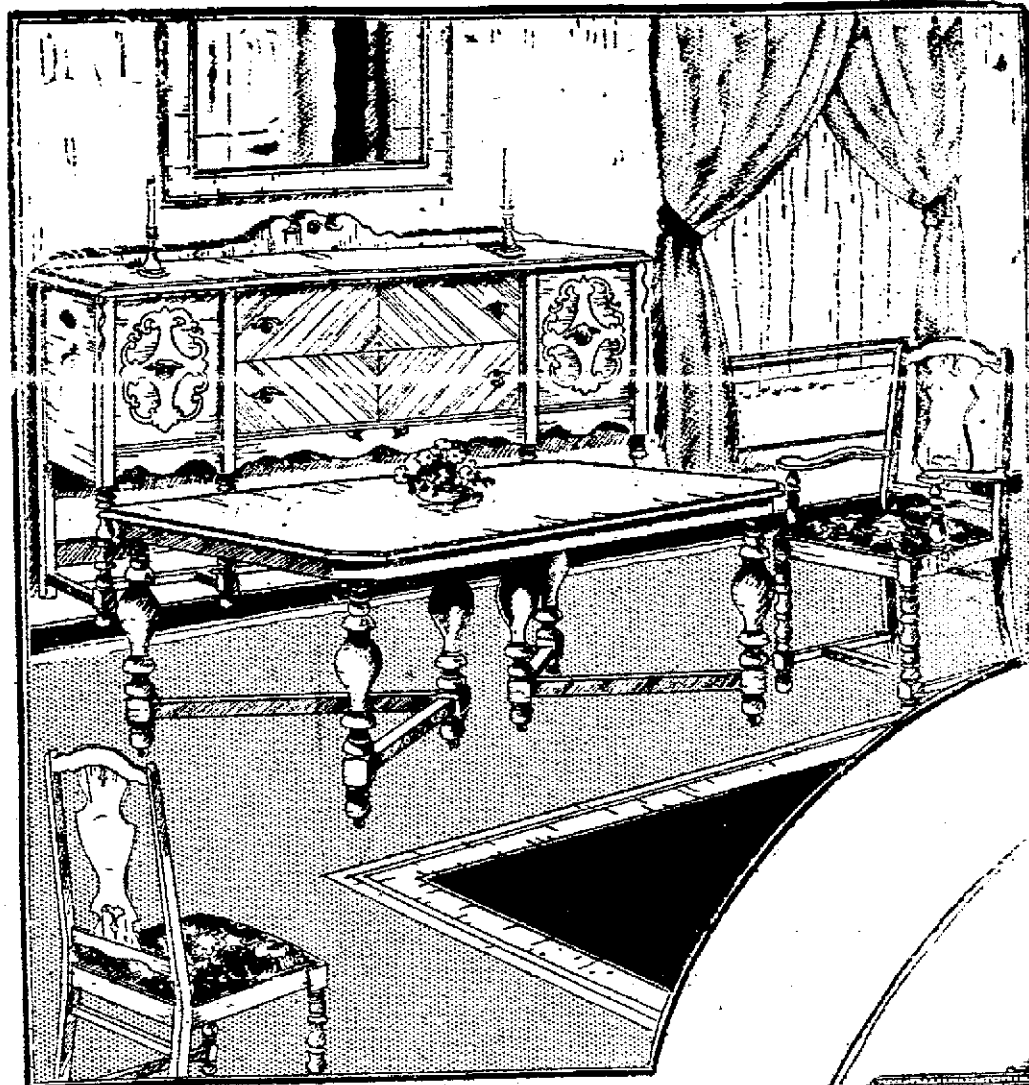

The conference, held previously in 1911, 1915 and 1923, is expected to draw more than 200 persons, and is designed to give trustees, librarians and assistants opportunity to consider enlarging and changing phases of library work.

REIGN OF TERROR ENDED IN SICILY; MAFIA BROKEN UP

150 Leaders of Sinister Organization Are Sent to Prisons

Termini Imerese, Sicily.—(AP)—The reign of terror of the Mafia is over. As Prefect Mori begins to scatter among the jails and penitentiaries of this island 150 of the last group of the Mafia ringleaders, recently convicted and sentenced by the courts, Sicily is settling down to a life of production and peace.

Romantic figures, who after all, were only cattle-thieves and murderers on a great scale, the Mafia for 15 years held Sicily paralyzed with terror. North and South America also felt the influence of the dread organization. Internal feuds within the criminal society were found settled in blood within the United States. Letters from the Americans were introduced during the trial showing that a fair percentage of the cattle stolen by the Mafia was sent to the western hemisphere.

The extent of the crimes of the present group of the Mafia was so vast that the court labored for nine months merely hearing the evidence and arguments. The jury was out for seven days, considering 50,000 questions and returning 7,000 answers to them.

HELD LIFE CHEAP
The Mafia group just dissolved, is believed to be the last of the notorious Sicilian organization. It was founded in 1812 at Mistrretta, primarily to carry on family and district feuds. It immediately began to wring off the cattle and extorting money. Human life, too, was of small value to the Mafia, much less, in fact, than that of cattle.

Selling agents were established in Palermo, Catania, Castellbuono, Messina, Niessia, Caronia, Polizzi, Mezzanico, Corleone, San Stefano, Gangi, Capizzi, Agira, Villafraati, San Mauro, Alia and Mazzarino and documents introduced at the trial indicated that there were agents in America.

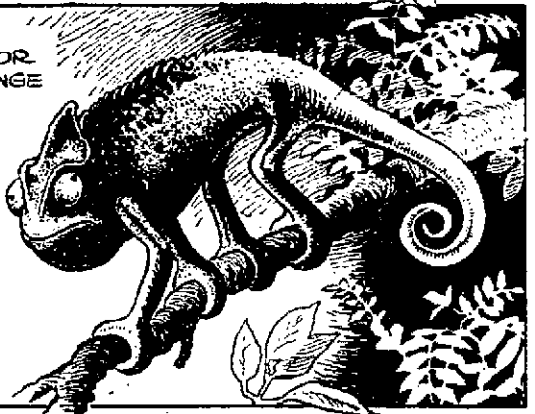

At the head of this vast organization was Attorney Ortoleva, a man of influence, skill and brains. His office was the general headquarters and the high court of the Mafia. Here it was determined what amount of tribute should be levied. Ortoleva himself was the justice. The Mistrretta section of the Mafia

LENROOT FOUND STORMY PATH TO U. S. JUDICIARY

Former Badger Senator Finally Overcame Opposition to Appointment

Washington.—(AP)—The quiet of courtroom life, which first knew Irvine Lenroot as an ambitious young reporter and later as a lawyer, today is graced by his presence on the bench where he may remain for the rest of his active life.

The bench of the United States court of customs and patent appeals is the haven to which Mr. Lenroot has retreated from the turbulent activity of political Washington, in which he figured prominently for several years as United States senator from Wisconsin.

Only through the favor of two presidents and the persistence of his friends in overriding the opposition to his accession to the bench, however, was Mr. Lenroot finally able to don the robes of the federal judiciary.

Probably few members of the senate in recent years have found more difficulty in obtaining the approval of their former colleagues to an executive appointment than Mr. Lenroot, who was one of President Coolidge's leaders in the senate.

Ironically, the men who stubbornly fought to thwart him in the achievement of his ambition were the so-called "independents" from the farm belt who years ago were his close allies. They failed in the end but only after a bitter fight against their political enemy and former friend.

The former senator from Wisconsin is the latest man of several prominent figures of the Coolidge regime to seek the bench. In becoming a federal judge under a life appointment, Mr. Lenroot definitely returns to his first love—the law.

As a boy in northern Wisconsin, Irvine Lenroot nursed an ambition to be a lawyer and many years later carried it to fruition by dint of earnest application to dry tomes in law offices.

His first contract with the courts was as the recorder of testimony, and he continued as the reporter in the Douglas county superior court for some time after he was admitted to the bar.

Politics intrigued him. He was attracted by the magnetism of Robert M. LaFollette, who was preaching a liberal political doctrine and gathering progressive legislation and then the house of representative called Lenroot, and in 1919 he became the junior senator from Wisconsin as the colleague of LaFollette.

How Lenroot broke with LaFollette and joined the opposition to his former chief, and later directed the successful fight for American adherence to the world court, is a master of history.

Defeated for re-election in 1926 by the late Senator LaFollette's ally, John J. Blaine, Lenroot retired to private life, resuming the practice of law in Washington. In his legal capacity he aided the campaign of President Hoover.

As he was about to retire, President Coolidge named Mr. Lenroot to the bench, but opponents blocked action on the nomination. It was renewed by Mr. Hoover and confirmed despite the opposition of the progressive leader, Senator George W. Norris, and others.

LOCAL GIRL FINISHES HOME NURSING BUREAU

Milwaukee.—Miss Violet Schoettler, Appleton, has just been graduated from the Milwaukee Bureau of Home Nursing, 808 Jackson-st., and will do practical nursing in this city during the ensuing year. The Bureau of Home Nursing, financed by the Milwaukee community fund, conducts a school for training practical nurses to meet the great demand for such nurses throughout Milwaukee and the state.

The course given by the school covers a period of one year and the student is obliged by agreement to work in Milwaukee the following year under the direction of the school which is headed by registered nurses. The year's training which includes three months in an accredited hospital, is free to both Milwaukee and out of city students.

JUNE BRIDE DAYS ARE HERE AT LAST

Many New Wedding Gowns Are Made of Egg Shell Satin

BY AILEEN LAMONT

Copyright, 1929, By Cons. Press

New York—The days of glory for June bride are upon us. And they are making the most of them with the beautiful frocks with filmy draperies and long flowing lines which yet have a smart shortness of skirt.

Some of the new wedding gowns are of egg shell satin and georgette embroidered with diamonds and with a diamante cap to hold the veil. Another frock is adorned with flowing draperies of net bordered with silver, with a veil of georgette and tulle. The bridesmaids' frocks are filmy, diaphanous but short.

Don't start on compression. That is a maximum for dress, not for racing outboard motors, which do start on compression. But the foundations—the modern name for a corset—ban compression and substitute support. The modern idea is to mould bust and hips rather than compress them. For this reason foundations for not too slim figures combine belt and brastraps.

POCKETS

Pockets are now a specialty of dress and they are being placed in the most obscure and devious places. In fact they may be said to be unexpected. But in reality they are of the ornamental rather than the gold digger type. However, this is the first time anyone ever saw a pocket in a nightgown, or a pair of panties or on an undershirt. What the pockets contain is immaterial. They may hold a pair of dice or a lipstick or a hankie; but what they really do is give a touch of color to garments whose briefness have robbed them of most adornments.

Don't button up your summer coat. It is desired to fasten a garment of this type, the narrow leather belt is the proper mode of fastening. This permits a trimness without the cost so as to cut off cooling breezes. The newer belts are of reptile skin in gray or sun tan shades or in sun tan shade. They are smart with white coats.

WANT U. W. WOMEN ON FEDERAL COMMITTEE

Madison—(AP)—Prof. Lita Bane of the home economics department of the University of Wisconsin has been asked by Secretary Wilbur of the interior department to accept membership on the federal educational advisory committee which meets for the first time Friday. The group will study possibilities of centralizing the educational forces of the nation under one departmental assistant secretary.

In announcing the selection of the Wisconsin member, Secretary Wilbur said the committee of about 40 educators would be divided into three groups for a comprehensive survey of means of organizing federal education activities.

Miss Bane will work with group one in examining the present administration of the educational activities of the federal departments, and their future organizations.

The home economist left Tuesday to attend the meeting in Washington.

STATE FOX BREEDERS TO MEET ON JUNE 20

BY W. F. WINSEY

Green Bay—The seventh annual mid-summer convention of the Wisconsin Fox Breeders' association is to be held at the fair grounds at Wausau, June 20, 21, and 22.

The meeting will cover the raising of fur bearing animals, conducted by this association for the benefit of all fur ranchers, and will be free of all except a small registration fee of $1.50 which will be charged to help defray the necessary expenses.

The best authorities in the United States and Canada will be present and appear on the program and will assist in answering questions. Among the speakers on the program are: Dr. W. A. Young, president of the American National Fox Breeders' association; Dr. S. F. Wainwright, Boston, Mass., for veterinary of world wide reputation; George Tuttle, S. Rygate, Vt.; Jos. Sterling, Lake Placid, New York; Dr. Greer, University of Minnesota; W. W. Bell, Indianapolis. Sir Charles Dalton of Summerside, P. E. I., is to be the guest of honor.

POINTERS FOR THE EFFICIENT FARMER

(By U. S. Department of Agriculture)

Cannibalistic habits of the corn earworm contribute to its own destruction. Whenever two earworms come into contact with each other they fight until one is injured. Often the victor is fatally injured.

Salt is very important for horses. A delicate eater or shy drinker often will develop an increased appetite if given access to salt. About three-fourths of an ounce daily should be allowed, although horses doing heavy work and on dry feed may need more.

Breeding hogs should be fed with the idea of building up a frame to support the body for several years rather than for eight or nine months. Thus a higher percentage of protein and mineral feeds must be given to breeders, and they should have the run of good pasture. Corn in quantities equal to one-fourth of the ration, shorts or middlings, a little fish meal or tankage, should be supplied with pasture. Skim milk or buttermilk is good. Light-weight oats never should be fed.

Studies of 129,000 cows on test in dairy-improvement associations show that "the big cows within a breed excel in production of milk and butterfat and in income over cost of feed. In one breed the cows, averaging 1,500 pounds in weight, produced 98 pounds more butterfat yearly than 800-pound cows of the same breed. The cost of feed for the larger cows was $20 higher per cow, but they returned $43 more in annual income over cost of feed.

DEPARTMENT WILL ISSUE NEW STAMP

Commemorate Anniversary of Sullivan Expedition With New Seal

The federal postal department is preparing to issue a special 2-cent postage stamp to commemorate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Sullivan expedition in New York state during the Revolutionary war according to word received at the Appleton post office. The new stamp will be regular size, printed in red ink.

The central design is a three-fourth length portrait of Major General Sullivan in continental uniform over which is a semicircular panel bearing the words, "United States Postage" in white x Roman letters, on a dark background with light edges. This panel is supported on either side of brackets of scroll work forming the upper part of a narrow panel and ending at the base in dark circles with white borders. With the circles in each lower corner appears the numeral 2 in white Roman letters.

Across the top of the stamp is a ribbon bearing the title "Sullivan Expedition" in dark Roman letters. Below, on either side on extensions of the ribbon panel, are the dates 1779 at the left and 1929 at the right.

The new stamp will first be placed on sale June 17, at post offices in Genesee and Perry, N. Y. Other post offices will receive them as soon thereafter as possible. A supply is being ordered for the local office.

WOMANS CLUB

Athletics Maul St. Louis Browns To Win 15-4

MACKS OF TODAY LOOK LIKE GREAT TEAMS OF '13-'14

National Race Getting Closer as Giants Win from Cardinals

BY WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

With each passing day it becomes easier to believe that Baker and Barry and Collins and McInnis are back at their posts again, easier to take the backward trail through baseball history to the day when Cornelius McGillicuddy owned the 100-percent baseball machine. The Athletics of 1929 battered the Browns shamefully Thursday in a 15 to 4 battle, proving once more their right to wear the mantle of their illustrious predecessors.

It is yet too early to pass out the pennants, but if memory serves, the championships of 1913 and 1914 were as good as awarded to Mr. Mack along about April. The third of the 1929 campaign soon will be over, and the Macks promise to pass that stage in such circumstances that 550 hall will suffice over the rest of the route—as it would have sufficed for the last three Yankee teams. Further, nothing short of a cataclysm can prevent the Macks from holding the lead on July 4, the traditional date on which pennant soundings are taken.

CLEVELAND BEATS YANKS
Cleveland outplayed the Yankees, 9 to 7, Thursday as the Athletics made merry with the Browns, giving Mr. Mack another neat gain over his nearest competitors. The Yankees and the Browns remained in a virtual tie the seven and one-half games behind the Athletics, with the champions holding a slight percentage edge through having greater than the cold figures, because the Yankees had pitched hardly equal to the task.

George Fingras was knocked out by the Indians Thursday, and Myles Thomas and Tom Zachary were roughly used after he departed. Tony Lazzeri and Cedric Durst made it seem close with a pair of home runs in the eighth, driving Walter Miller from the box, and another rally in the ninth threatened to pull out the decision against Ken Holloway. Young Ferrell put an end to the foolhardiness by the simple expedient of forcing Gehrig to hit into a double play.

SIMMONS GETS HOMER
George Earnshaw failed to go the route against the Browns in spite of a ten-run lead, but he nevertheless received official credit for a double victory. The Browns' earned him out of the picture with a four-run rally in the fifth, and Bill Shores did a neat job of finishing. Simmons helped the Macks with his twelfth homer, tying Gehrig for the league lead, while Fox cut in with his tenth.

Detroit rallied in the eighth for three runs to defeat Washington by 7 to 5, and the White Sox stopped the Red by 9 to 5.

The nip-and-tuck battle in the National league continued. The Giants edged closer to the real fight by shading the Cardinals, 5 to 4, for the second successive afternoon as the Cubs rallied to defeat Brooklyn, 8 to 6. Pittsburgh increased its lead over the Cards by taking a 4 to 0 decision from the Reds, and the Phils regained the 500-run mark by turning back the Reds, 2 to 0. The Phils won on Fresco Thompson's freak homer, which leaped from fair territory into a field box. Ray Benge out-pitched May and Kemmer.

The Giant victory was notable for the pitching come-back of Larry Benton, who has had an in and out spring. Bill Terry helped him with a home. Bill Denny inserted a four-base blow for St. Louis.

MILLERS WIN AGAIN FROM BREWERS, 1-0

Hurling Duel Between Polli and Robertson Goes to Former

BY WILLIAM A. WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
Chicago—(P)—Kansas City's task of overtaking Minneapolis in the American association pennant race Friday was one game larger.

In the opening game of their series at Kansas City Thursday, the Millers gained the jump with a 6 to 4 victory. The defeat left the Blues three full games behind first place. Benton and Rhen were his hard as Warmouth, Feltz and Nelson, but the Millers concentrated their attack on Warmouth in the first three innings, scoring all their runs.

St. Paul held its ground in the race by taking a pitching battle between Polli and Charley Robertson, from Milwaukee, 1 to 0. Polli held the Brewers to five hits while Robertson held the Saints to six safeties and the Phils to four.

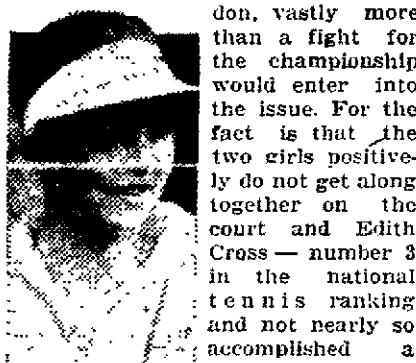

Ken Denner pitched Indianapolis to a shutout victory over Toledo, stopping the Hens with four scattered singles. His mates located Hugh McGuillan for 11 safeties and a 3 to 0 margin. Not a Toledo player reached second base during the contest which became the Indians' third straight in the series.

Louisville outslugged Columbus in the big hitting contest of the day, winning by 9 to 6. The Colonels went to work on Giard, Maxton and Jablonowski for 15 hits while Creson and Wilkinson issued an even dozen. The Senators got away to a strong start, but failed to keep pace with Louisville in the closing innings.

Apparently The Two Helens Don't Get Along

BY LAWRENCE PERRY
(Copyright, 1929.)

NEW YORK—If Helen Wills and Helen Jacobs, sister Californians, sister students at the University of California, should come into competition at Wimbledon, vastly more than a fight for the championship would enter into the issue. For the fact is that the two girls positively do not get along together on the court and Edith Cross—number 3 in the national tennis ranking and not nearly so accomplished a player as Miss Jacobs who ranks number 2—was chosen as Miss Wills' partner because of friction between the two Helens.

Helen Wills

Helen Wills regards Miss Jacobs as too aggressive to be suitable as a partner and Miss Jacobs holds a similar attitude toward the champion. And back of all this lies an interesting story of rivalry.

For example Miss Wills joined one leading sorority at Berkeley and Miss Jacobs cast her lot with a rival leading sorority. The sorority rivalry is no insignificant thing at a state university. The two girls do speak as they pass by but no one has ever discerned warmth in their greetings.

It is imputing nothing against Miss Jacobs when it is said that a victory over Helen Wills would be the most satisfactory accomplishment of her career. Whether she will ever be able to gratify this ambition is exceedingly doubtful although it is a fact that Helen Jacobs this year is a vastly improved player, is much steadier than she used to be and has gained increased pace. Were the two girls to get into the finals at Wimbledon—which is not at all possible—California at least would camp by the cable offices awaiting news of the Amazonian combat.

The fact that Miss Jacobs was not selected to team with the champion kept her out of the 1929 European invasion so far as the defraying of the girl's expenses was concerned. Miss Wills and Miss Cross were sent by the United States Lawn Tennis Association and, in the selection of Miss Cross, there may be no question that Helen Wills' preference was considered.

It would have been suicidal to have teamed the two leading women players. They simply would not have jelled as a combination. History has demonstrated frequently that a doubles team made up of two champions may be the most ineffective combination that could be contrived. "Men and Richards made a woful mess of things but when Richards hit with Norris Williams, long past his prime, a great team was the result."

At any rate, Miss Wills and Miss Cross going overseas under the aegis of the tennis association, it looked for a time as though Helen Jacobs would not make the trip. But Mr. and Mrs. John Hill of England and Miss Evelyn Collier, the attractive and accomplished English tennis player combined with a friend of Miss Wills in San Francisco to finance the journey.

MAKE FINAL CUT IN LEGION SQUAD

Junior Team Will Play Practice Games Before Schedule Begins

The final cut in the American Legion junior baseball squad was made Thursday afternoon by Coach Eddie Starnard and Earl Bates, the pairing leaving the 11 youngsters who will carry the colors of the local legion post in the series of district games to be started late this month.

Boys remaining on the squad are as follows:

Metzler, Schroeder, Jongs, Peotter, M. Pope, N. Pope, Loose, Kirk, Hill, Friebe, Huhn, Rule, Bowers and Schneider.

Thursday evening before the cut the Regulars and Nannigans played a game that the latter won making an even break in the three game series. Each team won a game while one was a tie. The men whose names remain on the team roster will hold their first practice Monday afternoon at Brandt park. The workout is scheduled to begin about 6 o'clock.

Suits will be handed out to the youngsters at 7:30 Monday evening, at the Post-Crescent, according to Coach Starnard.

Several practice games with neighboring teams will be played by the youngsters. The first is scheduled for next Wednesday evening against Kimberly entry.

PETROLLE GIVEN NOD OVER MILLER

Paddy Harmon Seeks "Express" Services for Canzoneri Fight

Detroit—(P)—Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, moved to the front ranks of challengers for the world lightweight championship Friday as a result of his ten round victory over Ray Miller, the Chicago left hooker in the Olympia arena Thursday night.

Petrolle defeated Miller by carrying the fight to him in five of the ten rounds. He upset Miller in the third with a short right cross to the chin, flooring him for a count of nine. Miller tried to flag down the Fargo Express and nearly succeeded in the ninth but Petrolle stepped aside of his left hand leads and avoided Miller's rights.

Paddy Harmon, president of the Chicago Stadium Corporation, opened negotiations for Petrolle's services Friday, hoping to match him with Tony Canzoneri in another lightweight elimination contest. Harmon wants to stage a Petrolle-Canzoneri match in the Cub baseball park next month.

BRESNAHAN SAYS HE NEVER OFFERED ATHLETES MONEY

Meanwell, Badger Caged Coach, Also Denies Recruiting Charge

CHICAGO—(P)—The Chicago Tribune Friday carries a story in which George T. Bresnahan, track coach and supervisor of intercollegiate athletics, denies charges of recruiting and paying of athletes.

According to the Tribune, Bresnahan said he has worked seriously to give Iowa winners in track, and has always been eager to have good athletes attend Iowa, but that he never has made an athlete a financial offer.

Bresnahan said, according to the Tribune story:

"When I say I tried to persuade athletes to come to Iowa I mean this: I made the acquaintances of high school coaches, many of them became my friends. I made the acquaintance of the athletes, many of them my friends and I talked to them."

"But I never have offered an athlete a cent of money to come to Iowa or personally told an athlete I could help him get financial support."

According to the story in the Tribune Bresnahan expressed sorrow if his activities have caused concern to be directed at Iowa but said he has no apology to offer.

He also said that in the case of L. D. Welden, a javelin thrower, who left Graceland College, Iowa, to enter the University of Iowa, he told Welden's coach that he might be able to obtain a scholarship for the athlete, but made no other promises.

MEANWELL DENIES CHARGE

Meanwell, basketball coach at the University of Wisconsin, said he "talked to no player" when he attended the Indiana state high school basketball tournament.

He was speaking with reference to charges made by Everett Case, Frankfort, Ind., high school basketball mentor, that Meanwell, and other Big Ten coaches attended the Indiana tourney this spring to recruit stars for their respective schools.

"I went purely as a spectator," he said, "and during the time that I was there I did not so much as speak to any player. I did not go into any dressing room and did not meet any player at any hotel or elsewhere. Coach Case invited me to go to the dressing room to meet his Frankfort team, but I did not do so."

BADGERS GO AFTER BASEBALL VICTORIES

Meet Minnesota in Two Games Saturday to Decide Second Place

Madison—With a clear claim to second place in the Western conference at stake, Wisconsin's baseball squad will invade Minnesota for a pair of games with Minnesota Saturday afternoon. The first tilt will start at 1 o'clock.

At present the Badgers are tied with Iowa for second. Although Lowman's men were keenly disappointed at their recent defeat by Michigan, which cost them the championship, they have been working at a fast pace this week with an eye to making the best possible conference record.

Although Minnesota is far down in the second division of the league standing, the Gophers have a number of powerful hitters in their lineup and may create trouble at any stage of the ball game.

Maurie Farber and Ted Thelander are expected to share the pitching burden in the two games. They will be opposed by Ossell and Bjorlund.

The season finale with Minnesota will mark the close of the university baseball careers of seven of the Badger regulars. The departure of these players will leave Coach Guy Lowman with several holes to fill when he issues the ball for the annual autumn workouts.

NATIONAL LEAGUE HAVING A BIG YEAR

Strengthen Clubs and Five Way Race Creating Much Interest

Cincinnati—(P)—The five team race in the National league is a result of strengthening the weaker teams and has done the circuit a world of good. President John A. Heydler said Friday. He was here for the annual June meeting of league club owners.

The rise of the Giants to a fighting position for the first place, and the improved playing of the Philadelphia team he cited as a result of the action. He declared interest among the fans had been intensified thereby.

YOUNGSTERS LOSE BALL; BABE RUTH SENDS THEM TWELVE

Chicago—(P)—Billy Day, just 16 years old, sowed a baseball on the neighbor's lawn last week. Friday he reaped the harvest; 12 baseballs, all autographed by Babe Ruth.

Billy and his boy friends were playing one-out in the alley, and someone laid a homerun out of bounds. The neighbor into whose new garden the ball fell, refused to surrender it and the whole thing finally was thrust out in court. The court held it perfectly proper for Billy to retrieve the ball.

Babe Ruth heard of it and sent the dozen balls. Billy distributed them among members of his team—reglars and subs.

CHAIRS, PRESSMEN WIN LEAGUE GAMES

Pettibone-Peabody and Telephone-Hardwares Are the Losers

Appleton chair company and the Tuttle Press were winners in American league softball games played Thursday evening on First ward and Wilson school grounds, respectively. The chair company beat the Telephone-Schlafer team 15 and 3 while the Pressmen trounced over Pettibone-Peabody, 12 and 7.

In the latter game, the Retailers outfit the Pressmen and errored less but lost the game anyway. Failure to count more than one run to an inning until the eighth caused the Petts team downfall.

The Pressmen counted a run in the first inning and repeated in the second with a big splurge of six counters in the third. The Retailers found a lone run in the fourth but the Pressmen won it back in their half the inning.

Petts counted another run in the sixth frame and once more in the seventh. The Pressmen also counted once in the seventh and then both moved into the eighth inning where the Retailers counted four runs and the Pressmen two. The big margin in the sixth frame was too much to overcome, however.

Batteries for the Retailers were Belling and Sloeger, for the Pressmen, Purdy and Fumal. Belling gave 12 hits and his mates errored twice while Purdy gave 15 hits and his mates errored four times.

The Telephone company-Schlafer team proved little opposition to the chair company, the lopsided score of 15 to 3 indicating the difference between the two squads.

The Chairs started off with a two-run lead in the first inning and added six runs to the count in the third. They then became generous and gave the losers three runs in the third inning, the only counters they picked up during the evening. Other chair company scores came in the sixth inning when three runs went over the plate, in the eighth when two were chalked up and in the ninth when a like number scampered across.

Al Selig and Balheim worked for the chair company. Diamond and Kranzsch for the Telephone-Hardwares.

BUNIONEERS MAY END MARATHON NEXT WEEK

Buckeye, Ariz.—(P)—The 19 surviving runners in the Pile union derby Friday turned toward Gila Bend, 58 miles from here prepared to expend their best efforts in the remaining days of the New York-Los Angeles race. The Bunioneers should reach their goal by the end of next week.

Johnny Salo, Passaic, N. J., added 21 minutes and 10 seconds to his lead in elapsed time by capturing Thursday's 54.2 mile jaunt from Mesa. Pete Gavuzzi, of England, and Gus Cunniff, Italy, third, Paul Simpson, Burlington, N. C., limped in with a lame leg, and finished seventeenth, but retained fifth place in elapsed time.

NATS GET ALABAMA STAR
Jim Moore, star second baseman at the University of Alabama this year, was recently signed by Washington. Several other clubs were after him.

National League Moguls To Meet At Cincinnati

BY JOHN E. FOSTER
Copyright 1929

NEW YORK—The National league will have its summer meeting in Cincinnati this year. The boss of the Reds invited fellow owners to meet with him.

No particular subject is up for discussion and it is not certain that all of the owners will attend. The rumor that financial aid is being sought by some clubs is without foundation. There is to be no change in the playing rules. The rules cannot be changed by one league without the cooperation of the other.

There is not apt to be any favorable response to the zoning of playing fields to try to cut down home runs, because if that is done there will be six umpire disputes a week as a minimum and six protested games because of a difference of opinion between spectators and umpires. It is agreed that whenever the ball flies into a stand it is better to have it fly free and not be judged by mythical barriers. There is trouble enough as it is.

Home runs at the Polo Grounds that are granted because the ball strikes a barrier and bounds back are not popular with other National clubs or with the fans. It is the impression of men who have to do with the rules that such hits should be accepted and placed as the ball bounds back from the wall into the field.

The hazard of a barrier is, the same whether it is a barrier just off the ground or one that is elevated. The specialization of a home run at the Polo Grounds because the ball hits a stand high above the ground is not sound or scientific.

The schedule dates for 1930 will be talked over. The schedule of 1929 has been going on pretty well when the weather gave it a change. The postponed games have eaten heavily into the receipts of some clubs. The Boston club better in the early part of the season than they expected but are sure to take a drop as the team draws nearer to its actual playing form. The sport was good while it lasted and helpful to Judge Fuchs who managed until he conceived it was his greater duty to get out and find some ball players for 1930.

Brooklyn has been going bad in many ways for which illness and bad weather are held responsible. A huge Memorial day crowd set the Giants on their feet after a lot of bad weather.

St. Louis hasn't drawn as well as a championship team should draw and the Cubs have been running wild with crowds. Cincinnati is in its usual condition of apathy and Pittsburgh hasn't kept up to its stand although it will be in the front row and right in the center if the team continues to win as it has.

The National league is about in accord with the American league as to the next conference that may be held with the minor leagues. It is thought the matter in regard to players will come up again but the minor leagues must make a reply to the last condition set by the big leagues before there will be a mutual understanding.

Disgusting into the colleges for ball players is not so warmly advocated as it was by National league men and as there are American league owners who think the college player matter has been overdone every way from Sunday, and back again, it may be possible that major leagues will let the college men alone in the future and the minors will get any players worth while. There are mighty few of them.

YOST WILL NAME MICHIGAN COACH

New Football Mentor Probably Will Be Wolverine Graduate

Ann Arbor, Mich.—(P)—A football coach at the University of Michigan probably will be selected within the next ten days. Fielding H. Yost, director of athletics, said Friday. Yost stated he hoped to be able to announce Wieman's successor before commencement day, June 17.

It is generally believed that the new coach will be a former Michigan man now actively engaged in the teaching of athletics. Among those most frequently mentioned are Harry Kipke, head coach at Michigan State college and former assistant coach here; Franklin C. Cappon, assistant coach here and former athletic director at the University of Kansas; and Johnny Maubetsch, star fullback of the Wolverines more than a decade ago and now head football coach at Oklahoma A. and

FROM LEO KID ROY

Canadian Veteran no Match for Bronx Flash in Come-back

New York—(P)—Al Singer, Bronx flash, has used the Montreal veteran, Leo Kid Roy, as a stepping stone in his come-back campaign. Singer, whose stock dropped sharply after he had been kayoed by Ignacio Fernandez, scored a sensational one-round knockout over Roy at Jess McMahon's New York coliseum Thursday night to regain the favor of Bronx fans.

Roy went down twice in the two minutes and 41 seconds the fight lasted. A left hook to the chin dropped him for seven seconds and a moment later a right cross to the same spot put him out for the evening.

Singer weighed 130 1-2 pounds; Roy, 125.

CASE MAKES NO CHARGES AGAINST PURDUE CAGE COACH

Griffith Says Frankfort Teacher Wanted to Know Who Linked Name to Iowa

CHICAGO—(P)—A feeling of relief, mingled with continued vigilance, existed in the Big Ten conference Friday, following the failure of Coach Edwin Case of Frankfort, Ind., high school, to make expected sensational charges of proselyting and subsidizing athletes, against Purdue and other member institutions.

Case came here Thursday, reported to be ready to tell Major John L. Griffith, Big Ten athletics commissioner, of the activities of other schools who were "as guilty as I" in the matter of hiring athletes.

After a two-hour conference with Case, however, Major Griffith announced that the Frankfort coach had made no charges "against Purdue or any other school," but had come to Chicago to "learn who had linked his name with the Iowa case."

Case had been charged with having sent money to his Indiana high school basketball championship team to Iowa in exchange for teachers' credits following the summer school session of 1927. Case denied this and said the athletes in question Doyle Plunkett and Bob Spradling, had chosen Iowa of their own accord.

He explained to Major Griffith that the question of his summer school credits had been investigated and the matter settled to the satisfaction of the Frankfort school board, and the Indiana board of education.

While Major Griffith said that Case had made no charges against any Big Ten schools, he added that any information he had gained during his conference with Case would be turned over to schools concerned and to the Big Ten faculty committee on athletics which expelled Iowa nearly two weeks ago.

Case was said to have told the Frankfort board of education that Purdue university was "as guilty as I" in seeking the services of athletes.

He modified this by saying that Ward Lambert, Purdue basketball coach, as well as other coaches, had visited Frankfort to talk to his athletes. He denied that he had charged any coach with having attempted to hire athletes. He said that Justin (Sam) Barry, who recently resigned as basketball coach at Iowa, was a good friend of his, but declared that fact had nothing to do with the decision of Spradling and Plunkett to select Iowa over Purdue or any other school.

M. Dr. John White, former head football coach at Ohio State, also has been mentioned by football followers.

Maubetsch probably would relish for sentimental reasons, a part in training the 1929 Wolverines. In 1914 he was star fullback of the Michigan team that held Harvard to a lone touchdown. Although he himself made more yardage than the entire Harvard team, the Wolverines were defeated 7 to 0. Michigan will meet Harvard again next fall for the first time since that game.

New York—Al Singer, New York, knocked out Leo Kid Roy, Montreal, (I).

BELMONT STAKES OLDEST RACE IN UNITED STATES

Saturday's Derby Purse
Totals Close to $80,000;
$63,000 to Winner

NEW YORK (AP)—America's oldest turf fixture, the Belmont stakes, receives its sixty-first running at Belmont Park Saturday with the probability that the winner may be crowned the 1929 three-year-old champion.

Whether the impending race is to be won by a horse future generations will accept as such a champion as Henry of Navarre, Commanche, Africander, Fox, Pan, Colin, Hourless, Sir Barton, Man O' War, Grey Lag and Crusader, each in his time, is problematical. The problem hinges on the showing of Blue Larkspur. E. R. Bradley's most promising three-year-old, which won a leg on the mythical championship by carrying off honors in the ancient Withers after a disappointing start in the muddy Kentucky Derby.

Restricted to entire colts and fillies, the Belmont is to America what the Derby is to England, both being run over a mile and a half course. Starters must pack scale weight, colts 126 pounds and fillies 121. There are no penalties or allowances crossing close to $80,000, according to the number of starters, it will pay the winner between $63,000 and $66,000 in addition to the gold plate given by Mrs. August Belmont, widow of the first president of the Westchester Racing association under whose auspices the Belmonts have been revived since 1890. The race was named after the first August Belmont.

Standing head and shoulders above the field, which will probably number less than a dozen, are Blue Larkspur, Chestnut Oak, Jack High and Dr. Freehand. The quartette figured in the order named in the Withers mile, only the Peckness winner being out of the running in that mad dash through the stretch.

BATTLE OF CENTURY TO BE RUN SATURDAY

National College Track and Field Meet May See Many New Marks

Chicago (AP)—The battle of the century will be fought at Stagg field Saturday not with fists but with feet—the flying feet of the century's best—Bracey, Tolan, Simpson, Leland and the rest.

There were other important engagements on the 14-event card of the National Collegiate A. A. meet which began Friday, particularly the pole vault, the shot put, the 220-yard dash; but the century, the 100 yards of stamina and speed over the cinders, promised to be the Big Ten seconds of the meet.

The final of the century, as well as of all events, will be decided Saturday. Trial heats Friday, however, carried the promise of being run in as fast time as ever has been made by man.

Fourteen entries in this dash have been timed under ten seconds. Bracey of Rice Institute, Tolan, the Michigan negro star, Simpson of Ohio state and Leland of Texas Christian have traveled the distance in .09.5, which is as fast as it ever had been run, so far as accepted records reveal.

The pole vault record of 13 feet 6 1/2 inches has been beaten this spring by several men entered in this event, including Warner of Northwestern, Canby of Iowa, McDermott of Illinois, Williams of Southern California, and Edmonds of Stanford, holder of the record.

HIGH SCHOOL GRAD SIGNED BY MACKS

Tucson, Ariz. — Willie Witt, young Berkeley, Calif. high school graduate, who has been pitching for the Mesa team of the Arizona state league, has been sold to the Philadelphia Athletics. He leaves for the east Friday.

Lou Criger, veteran American league catcher, and scout for Connie Mack, declared Witt showed excellent promise and that he would be given a month's trial with the leaders in the American league race.

This is Witt's first year in professional baseball.

SENATE GETS BILL ON JANITORS' SALARIES

Madison (AP)—A bill by Assemblyman Roy Finn, Superior, providing for an increase of salaries of janitors at the University of Wisconsin was given preliminary approval by the state senate.

Recommendations of the joint legislative committee for killing of the bill was overturned. Lieut. Gov. Henry A. Huber casting the deciding vote in favor of the measure. The bill was ordered to a third reading by a vote of 15 to 14.

The original bill provided for a minimum salary of $120 a month after one year's service, but an amendment was adopted which requires that the salaries shall conform to the schedule prepared by the civil service commission.

Nature Head Tells How To Fight Off Plant Pests

BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President American Nature Association

Summer arrives on June 21 just as a lot of Nature's garden pests will be doing their worst.

There are two divisions in this pest army. They operate in different ways. Some work on the foliage, others on the flowers. Others bore into the stems and even into the roots. Control depends upon the feeding habits of the insects as well as the nature of the plant to be treated.

One of the essentials to successful garden culture is knowledge of insect life. Insects have been chewing or sucking mouth parts. The chewing insects bite off or bite into pieces of plant tissue. The sucking insects have beaks which penetrate the outer covering of the plants and take the juices from the cells.

Chewing insects include cutworms, caterpillars, grasshoppers and various beetles, while to the sucking group belong plant lice, scales and various mites which are not true insects but which may be classified as such when considering control.

REMOVE THE WEEDS
Removal of weeds reduces hibernation places and removes hosts which serve for the purpose of egg laying. All refuse from the garden should be removed regularly and either burned or buried. Spading often uncovers many grubs which may be hand-picked.

For chewing insects a coating of arsenical poison is placed upon the foliage in the form of either spray or dust. The majority will be controlled readily, provided they absorb these poisons. On the other hand the control of sucking insects depends upon contact insecticides—materials which kill by closing the breathing pores of the pests or by their caustic properties which destroy the tissues of the insect with which they come in contact.

Most effective of the arsenical poisons for chewing insects is arsenate of lead, used in either dry or liquid form. Three teaspoons of the powder dissolved in one gallon of water gives a spray of sufficient strength. Foliate that possesses a glossy or waxy foliage are benefited by the addition of one ounce of soap to every gallon of spray. This addition helps the liquid adhere closely to the foliage.

The same material may also be used in dust form when combined in the ratio of one ounce of powdered arsenate lead to four and one-half ounces of hydrated airslaked lime and four ounces of superfine sulphur. Thorough coating of the foliage is essential for results.

SOAP IS HELPFUL

lons of water providing two or three ounces of lime are added to prevent burning. Hellebore is used at the rate of one ounce to one gallon of water.

There are many ingredients used in contact insecticides but nothing better than a combination of nicotine sulphate and soap has been devised. Nicotine sulphate may be purchased from florists and seed houses and is used at the rate of one teaspoonful to a gallon of water together with one ounce of laundry soap or fish oil soap. Various nicotine dusts are also available, and are composed usually of nicotine sulphate lime and sulphur.

Soap alone is used for such easily killed insects as plant lice, soft scales, mealy bug and other. Nicotine oleate is the most recent contribution toward the control of white flies and red spiders, although a number of other white oil emulsions are equally as desirable.

Chewing insects are divided into three classes—those that feed upon the foliage in the open; those that surround themselves with a web, or roll the foliage, and those which feed on the inside of stems. The first group is readily controlled and comprises the cabbage worm, the hornworm, the corn ear worm, the white tussock moth—which is a serious pest on shade trees as well as on many herbaceous plants—the stinging rose caterpillar, the saddleback caterpillar and a number of others.

Arsenical sprays or dusts are of efficient materials in the control schedule.

Those which spin a web while feeding are the webworm, which attacks trees as well as shrubs and many herbaceous plants, the red banded leaf roller which has caused much damage to chrysanthemums, violets, roses and honeysuckles, the rose leaf tyer, the corolla leaf roller and the bagworm.

Due to the web or the rolling of the foliage, control methods are difficult. Penetration of the obstructive surfaces is necessary, but if stomach poisons are applied in the early stages much damage may be avoided.

The stem, stalk and root borers give the hardest job. Corn, dahlias, cosmos, iris, Clematis, rose, lilac, rhododendron and a host of other plants are plagued as easy prey by a number of borers. There is no effective way of poisoning these caterpillars. Clean culture, burning of all stems, roots and other dead plants will serve as a preventive.

Elimination of weeds as harbors of overwintering eggs is helpful. In some cases, splitting of stems and insertion of nicotine solutions has been attempted but the method is laborious and not always timed right to be successful.

EIGHT MORE BILLS SIGNED BY KOHLER

Madison (AP)—Eight bills, five of which originated in the assembly, were signed by Gov. Walter J. Kohler Wednesday night.

The assembly bills included ones to appropriate money to two persons, one concerning will life referees, to hands of guardians and concerning a revision of the statutes on notices of hearing upon application of letters of testamentary and of administration.

The Senate bill signed was one to reprimand the Wisconsin cemetery law, another to cede certain Milwaukee county lands to the federal government and the third to give strip of land along Milwaukee to the city to aid in navigation.

borious and not always timed right to be successful.

The scale insects are clustered and stationary except when just hatched from the egg or escaping from the female parent. Their protective covering is difficult to penetrate and contact. The San Jose scale, oyster scale, the rose scale and the scurfy scale are among the most common of these pests.

Spraying helps when done in the spring as the young scales emerge. Nicotine sulphate with soap as well as oil emulsions is used for this purpose.

CHICAGO, ALMOST BROKE, SEEKING CRISIS SOLUTION

Governing Bodies Ready to Call in Specialists to Help Them

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright, 1929, by Owen L. Scott
Chicago — Official admission was made Thursday that the governing bodies of Chicago face bankruptcy before the end of this year, unless a source of revenue can be found.

In an effort to meet the crisis, the second of the nation's cities is preparing to call in financial and economic experts, free from any political considerations, to help a course that may lead out of the present situation.

Right now, due to a revolting city treasury which refused to pay its taxes on a politically manipulated property assessment, taxing bodies are unable to collect. Reassessment is being made, but cannot be effective so officials say. Before June 1930, America is low and broke, with $200,000,000 already hoarded by tax anticipation warrants, are loath to increase their advances.

"The city will not be able to meet its pay rolls after October, unless taxes are collected," the officials say. "The county cannot operate at all. There are 50,000 employees of the local governments whose pay will be stopped between August and December because of the delay in collection. This applies to city policemen and city firemen."

WANT SPECIALISTS
Governing bodies, affected by the stringency, are willing to have specialists come in to study the problem. They want to be permitted to levy taxes on the basis of the 1927 assessment, which was found by the state tax commission to be grossly discriminatory. It climaxed a long period when the taxing power was used for political purposes.

"The city," said the chairman of the city council finance committee, has had to increase its rates of interest from 1 1/2 to six per cent and we've sold the legal maximum of 75 per cent of anticipated revenue.

"The county," said the president of the county board, has sold its legal maximum and now contractors are refusing to start paying jobs because we can't tell them when they

spending bodies — the sanitary district — are about over, due to legislative action permitting it to float $25,000,000 in bonds without a popular referendum.

The schools, however, and nearly all of the other governing bodies in the city and county, face serious trouble unless some scheme can be found to relieve the emergency.

Out of it all, Chicago may emerge with a model form of municipal administration in place of the archaic system which led to the present crisis.

GOLD BULLETS

THE FINGER OF SUSPICION

I have seen a good bit of death in my time but never had it seemed so dreadful as it did at this moment. In the nine years I had known Andrew I had become deeply attached to him — he was perhaps the closest friend I had — and coming upon him struck down like this ... I could feel the dagger twisting in my own heart.

Blinded by tears, I bent over him. He was done for, of course, but the body still was warm. It couldn't have been otherwise, since I had spoken to him less than five minutes ago. I looked at my watch. It was 27 minutes to ten. I had answered his call at exactly nine-thirty. It had taken me perhaps two minutes to come from my den.

The head rested on the right cheek. Andrew's right hand was near the telephone; his left was closed lightly over the receiver at the end of the desk. I recognized the dagger.

I pulled myself together. I must call the police and question Ogden's servants. Of the latter there were three: Hubbard and his wife, and Stimson, the gardener. An uprush of horror forced itself into words.

"Jerry!" I whispered. "Why didn't you stop?"

Sick at heart, I pulled a bell cord in the corner nearest the desk. The hall door was locked, but the key was in the lock and I turned it. Hubbard came up as I swung the door open.

I looked at him in silence for a moment. Hubbard is a large, bulbous person with a pastry face and a deferential manner.

"Is there anything wrong sir?"

"Yes," I said. "Your master."

His eyes went over my shoulder, then he fell back with a cry. "Good God sir! He's not—he's not dead?"

"Who did it sir? When did it happen?"

"Within the past five minutes. I don't know who did it. Where is Mr. Jerry?"

"He was here with Mr. Ogden all evening. I passed the door about half an hour ago and they were still talking. Mr. Ogden said they weren't to be disturbed."

"Sure it was half an hour?"

"Perhaps 35 minutes, sir. The hall clock had struck nine shortly before."

"Where were you during the past half hour?"

"In the kitchen with Mrs. Hubbard. I went upstairs for a little while about an hour ago. I was on my way back to the kitchen when I passed the library door half an hour ago."

"Where is Stimson?"

"He was with Mrs. Hubbard and me up to a few minutes ago, sir."

"What do you mean by a few minutes ago?"

"Ten or 15 minutes. I should say, sir. In fact, it had just turned half past nine when he left. He said he was going for a bit of a stroll."

I stepped into the hall and glanced at the clock. Its dial showed nine thirty-eight. My own watch was just past 20 seconds behind it. Andrew had telephoned me at nine-thirty. At that moment Stimson left the Hubbards and a few seconds later Andrew was killed. Assuming that Hubbard was telling the truth, Stimson could not have got to the library window, entered the room and killed Ogden in the brief space of time at his disposal. Nor could the Hubbards. The library door was locked on the inside, so entrance couldn't have been effected from the hall.

Mrs. Hubbard had come up noiselessly. Her eyes flew to the desk. She gave a sharp cry and fell back against the wall, clutching at her throat. She began to weep.

"You'd better take your wife up to her room, Hubbard," I said. "The police will want to talk to both of you. See if you can find Stimson, then come back here."

I watched them slowly mount the stairs. Twenty years they had been with Andrew. I went to the hall telephone and called Deacon.

"You'd better come over to the Ogden house right away," I told him. "What's wrong, John?"

"Ogden—he's dead! It looks like —" I could not pronounce the word. He gave a sharp cry. "I'll be right over, John."

Deacon is a square-built man. Square of face, square of shoulder, square of heart and mind. Never have I known personal feeling to swing him from the path of duty as he saw it by so much as the breadth of a gnat's tail. He is as incorruptible as time itself. If a man has the appearance of guilt he investigates him with meticulous honesty, looks him up if the evidence warrants it and frees him if it doesn't. In "open-and-shut" cases such methods are admirable, but when things are not what they seem and facts contradict themselves, the subtle approach and the comprehension and evaluation of human motives are, in my opinion, more likely to get at the truth. Deacon laughs at me, of course.

For this reason I dreaded his appearance.

The serious implications of the evidence had not escaped my mind for an instant. I had seen Jerry flying down the drive a minute or so after his father had been stabbed to death. I had called and instead of answering me he had gone faster. That was a fact. But so was my faith in his innocence a fact; that is, it was a fact to me. I knew that Jerry couldn't have killed his father. Deacon liked the boy, too, but his concrete mind would ignore the human element and consider only evidence that could be demonstrated.

I decided not to tell him what I had seen. He must dig up his own evidence. Perhaps it wasn't Jerry I had seen after all. No, this wouldn't do. He was in my home every day in various kinds of attire and his flannels were as familiar to me as were my own garments. Besides, an eye for detail has become second nature with me. I then tried to comfort myself with the thought that Jerry would return and explain his precipitous flight. He would, of course. But what was the young fool up to?

(Copyright, 1923, Wm. Morrow Co.)

Suspicion points at Jerry, but Peables is convinced that the youth is innocent. New developments and complications enter the story in tomorrow's chapter.

DUST TRAVELS 2,000 MILES

One of the most unusual dust journeys on record was that made by many tons of Australian soil which traveled more than 2,000 miles through the air to New Zealand, according to recent reports. The greater part of the journey was over water. In many parts of New Zealand and during the first falls, when the dust was brought down by rain, the mixture was referred to as mud rain. Some of it fell on sweaters of players during a football match, and so discolored them that it was difficult to pick out the garments of the different teams. Although the first dust storm to travel from Australia to New Zealand, the deposit was remarkable both for quantity and the area over which it was recorded.

Working Hard to Emerge
Victors

BY FRANK H. FULLER

Richmond, Va.—(AP)—Virginia still bearing scars of the political battle of 1928 that saw her break with the democratic "solid south," is experiencing one of the most spirited political years in her long history.

Already listening to the roar of democratic oratory in the primary campaign, Virginians are anticipating another and probably a more interesting campaign between democrats and republicans in the fall.

Virginia is the first southern state to hold a state election among the five from the "solid south" that cast their votes in the republican column last November.

The republicans will make a determined effort to wrest state control from the democratic party—a control the democrats have exercised since their return to power after reconstruction. The democrats are confident of holding an outright ground, undismayed by the republican victory for the national ticket.

A third political group, conceded by all to have exercised a tremendous influence in the 1928 election, has maintained its existence—the anti-Smith democrats. They will hold a state convention in Roanoke, June 18 to nominate "if deemed proper" a ticket for the election in the fall.

The republican party, stronger in Virginia than in most southern states, expects to enlist a large number of votes from the anti-Smith group.

Return of the anti-Smith democrats to the democratic fold was made easy through an opinion obtained by the democratic executive committee from the attorney general. The attorney general held that the primary laws requiring the voter to have supported democratic nominees in the previous election applied only to those nominated by direct primary, and since presidential electors were chosen by convention, those who failed to support the democratic national ticket were eligible to participate in the state primary this year.

Three gubernatorial candidates now are stumping Virginia in the democratic primary, discussing issues of state interest. The candidates are John Garland Pollard, former attorney general of Virginia and faculty member of the College of William and Mary; G. Walter Mapp, former state senator; and Rosewell Page, former second auditor of Virginia and brother of Thomas Nelson Page, ambassador to Italy in the Wilson administration. All pledged party loyalty.

Little discussion has centered on the prospective nominee for governor of the republican party, although the name of Robert Angell of Roanoke, republican state chairman, often has been mentioned. Mr. Angell, however, has announced he will retire as state chairman this year due to ill health. Henry W. Anderson, Richmond attorney, also has been mentioned for the post.

The anti-Smith democrats constitute the "unknown" factor in state politics. The general opinion is that to name a third ticket would split the vote Hoover received and democrats believe this would assure a democratic victory. There is a conviction in democratic circles that the leaders of the anti-Smith group cannot throw any large support to the republicans this year.

The normal democratic majority is about 50,000, but last year Hoover got 165,000 and Smith 141,000. Democrats contend that a number of democrats who were not affiliated with the anti-Smith group, voted against Smith last year. Democrats expect many votes to come back to their party this year, and predict the usual 50,000 majority. Republicans point out that three of their nominees for congress were elected in 1928.

Talks To Parents

WHY NOT COOPERATE?
By Alice Judson Peale

If you are the mother of a small child and you live anywhere except in the wide open spaces of the country, you doubtless meet your neighbors every morning and every afternoon shepherding their little ones out walking or watching them play.

Has it ever occurred to you that you and a few of those other young mothers might save yourselves a great deal of your very busy time and benefit your children immeasurably by a little cooperation in their care?

I know of one group of mothers who worked out such a scheme of cooperation. There were three of them and there were five youngsters all between three and five years of age. Each mother assumed entire responsibility for taking all the children out to play two days of the week. Each mother thereby gained four free days a week in which to do extra housekeeping jobs, shopping, part time work, or the attendance of "courses" and club meetings.

The children thrived under the arrangement. It was much more fun for them to play together than to take lonely airings with an adult who, after all was said and done, certainly was a sorry substitute for a real playmate.

The mothers not only won for themselves some of that freedom from the constant society of their children which every mother ought to have both for her own sake and theirs, but also they learned to be

PEONY BUSHES GET BABE-LIKE CARE JUST NOW

A newborn babe gets little more attention than peony bushes in Appleton gardens are getting at the present time, and Appleton gardeners awaken in the morning with the same interest in the weather as the child who is "going on a picnic". Their joy at seeing the sun streaming through the east window is as wholehearted as that of the boy or girl who has been fearful for a week that rain would spoil his holiday.

Much depends on Old Sol these days. The summer started so late, and the weather has been so inclement, that peony bushes have been held up in their usual progress. Unless June provides almost constant sunny weather, it is feared that peonies will not be in full bloom for the first annual flower show to be held some time this month.

As yet a definite date for the show has not been set. Sometimes the weather inspires members of the Appleton Flower and Garden society to set the date for the middle of June, and at other times the raw, chilly nights indicate that peonies will not have a chance to bloom until the latter part of the month.

However, committees in charge of the show are working energetically, and once the weather becomes stable enough, a date will be set and final plans for the show completed.

For the first time they were able to see their children with some of that detachment which characterizes the good nursery school teacher. They were able to consult each other in their difficulties and give each other helpful advice.

Mother! Don't Sun Starve Baby

Vanta Sun Suit, Sun Shirt and Sun Tan form a splendid colorful ensemble. Buy them in our Infants' and Children's Department.

Don't bury the little body under clothes that keep out the Sun's health giving rays. Your baby needs the sunlight just as flowers and plants do. Every doctor, every mother knows that sunlight is like food—it builds healthy bodies, strong bones, cures and prevents many baby diseases.

Start now, indoors if necessary, before an open window to give your baby daily sunbaths. A doctor's written prescription in every Vanta Sun Suit tells you how.
